

China's money 'good' for London

The Mayor of London has visited the 'forbidden city' in Beijing as part of his official trade tour of China. Boris Johnson is hoping to encourage billions of pounds of investment in the capital from Chinese businesses.

One such company is ABP, which is redeveloping the capital's Royal Albert Dock. Today the firm's boss told ITV News that the money coming from China was good for British society. Our China Correspondent Angus Walker reports.
