1968 and I'm Hitchhiking Through Europe Joe Mack, 2005-12 Hitchhiking Was he out of his mind No just taking his chances and lucky for us talking to people everywhere he went In 1968 the horror of the Second World War was still fresh in the memory of adult Europeans and America shared in the thanks for their liberation Joe became the beneficiary of their good feelings towards his country Not only did he get rides from them people took him into their homes and told him stories from their hearts Others were not so kind Join his journey through ten countries as Europeans and fellow Americans talk about the events of 1968 that are worth remembering and sharing Experience the pleasure and pain that comes with dependence on strangers and is found behind closed doors or in crazy minds See life in the streets through his eyes during a year of hope trust love hate and revolution

Backpack Ambassadors Richard Ivan Jobs, 2017-05-23 Even today in an era of cheap travel and constant connection the image of young people backpacking across Europe remains seductively romantic In Backpack Ambassadors Richard Ivan Jobs tells the story of backpacking in Europe in its heyday the decades after World War II revealing that these footloose young people were doing more than just exploring for themselves Rather with each step each border crossing each friendship they were quietly helping knit the continent together From the Berlin Wall to the beaches of Spain the Spanish Steps in Rome to the Pudding Shop in Istanbul Jobs tells the stories of backpackers whose personal desire for freedom of movement brought the people and places of Europe into ever closer contact As greater and greater numbers of young people trekked around the continent and a truly international youth culture began to emerge the result was a Europe that even in the midst of Cold War tensions found its people more and more connected their lives more and more integrated Drawing on archival work in eight countries and five languages and featuring trenchant commentary on the relevance of this period for contemporary concerns about borders and migration Backpack Ambassadors brilliantly recreates a movement that was far more influential and important than its footsore travelers could ever have realized

Memory, Place and Autobiography Jill Daniels,2019-01-03 There has been a significant growth in autobiographical documentary films in recent years This innovative book proposes that the filmmaker in her dual role as maker and subject may act as a cultural guide in an exploration of the social world It argues that in the cinematic mediation of memory the mimetic approach in the construction of documentary films may not be feasible and memory may instead be evoked elliptically through hybrid strategies such as critical realism and fictional enactment Recognizing that identity is formed by history and what goes on in the world the book charts the historical trajectory of the British independent filmmaking movement from the mid 1970s to the present growth of new online distribution outlets and new media through digital technologies and social media
