China's Emergence as a Defense Technological Power Tai Ming Cheung, 2013-10-31 China is flexing its growing military and strategic clout in the pursuit of broadening national security interests At the same time the country's economic and technology policies have also become more nationalistic state centered and ambitious China's defense economy has set its sights on catching up with the West by the beginning of the 2020s and is making steady progress in building up its innovation capabilities although this is presently in the form of incremental and sustaining types of activities More high end disruptive forms of innovation that would lead to major breakthroughs are likely to be beyond China's reach in the near to medium term This volume provides a wide ranging and detailed assessment of the present state of the Chinese defense economy at a time of rapid change and accelerating advancement in its innovation capabilities and performance This collection of articles has three main goals 1 to locate China's defense innovation dynamics within broader historical technological and methodological frameworks of analysis 2 to assess the performance of the Chinese defense economy's six principal subsectors and 3 to compare China's approach to defense industrialization with major counterparts in the Asia Pacific region This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Strategic Studies

Military R&D after the Cold War Philip Gummett, Mikhail Boutoussov, Janos Farkas, Arie Rip, 2012-12-06 Countries establish defence industries for various reasons Chief among these are usually a concern with national security and a desire to be as independent as possible in the supply of the armaments which they believe they need But defence industries are different from most other industries Their customer is governments Their product is intended to safeguard the most vital interests of the state The effectiveness of these products in the real rather than the experimental sense is not normally tested at the time of purchase If or when it is tested many other factors such as the quality of political and military leadership enter into the equation so complicating judgments about the quality of the armaments and about the reliability of the promises made by the manufacturers All of these features make the defence sector an unusually political industrial sector This has been true in both the command economies of the former Soviet Union and its satellites and in the market or mixed economies of the west

In both cases to speak only a little over generally the defence sector has been particularly privileged and particularly protected from the usual economic vicissitudes In both cases too its centrality to the perceived vital interests of the state has given it an unusual degree of political access and support
