as Revolution Luis E. Carranza, 2010-06-15 The period following the Mexican Revolution was characterized by unprecedented artistic experimentation Seeking to express the revolution's heterogeneous social and political aims which were in a continuous state of redefinition architects artists writers and intellectuals created distinctive sometimes idiosyncratic theories and works Luis E Carranza examines the interdependence of modern architecture in Mexico and the pressing sociopolitical and ideological issues of this period as well as the interchanges between post revolutionary architects and the literary philosophical and artistic avant gardes Organizing his book around chronological case studies that show how architectural theory and production reflected various understandings of the revolution's significance Carranza focuses on architecture and its relationship to the philosophical and pedagogic requirements of the muralist movement the development of the avant garde in Mexico and its notions of the Mexican city the use of pre Hispanic architectural forms to address indigenous peoples the development of a socially oriented architectural functionalism and the monumentalization of the revolution itself In addition the book also covers important architects and artists who have been marginally discussed within architectural and art historiography Richly illustrated Architecture as Revolution is one of the first books in English to present a social and cultural history of early twentieth century Mexican architecture Planning Latin America's Capital Cities 1850-1950 Arturo Almandoz, 2002-08-08 In this first comprehensive work in English to describe the building of Latin America's capital cities in the postcolonial period Arturo Almandoz and his contributors demonstrate how Europe and France in particular shaped their culture architecture and planning until the United States began to play a part in the 1930s The book provides a new perspective on international planning Constructing Identity in Contemporary Architecture Peter Herrle, Stephanus Schmitz, 2009 The global spread of uniform modes of production and cultural values has been accompanied by a dissemination of stereotypes of modern architecture styles almost everywhere around the globe Paradoxically the reverse process has also emerged In some countries the elites feel the necessity to counterbalance the loss of identity and defend their own cultures against the intruding forces of globalization What started as a defensive notion has developed into a more progressive attempt to re create what has allegedly been lost This trend is being strongly expressed in discourses about architecture in countries of the South Who are the actors feeling compelled to construct new identities How are these new identities in architecture created in various parts of the world And which are the ingredients borrowed from various historical and ethnic traditions and other sources These and other questions are discussed in five case studies from different parts of the world written by renowned scholars from Brazil Mexico Egypt India and Singapore Building the New World Valerie Fraser, 2000 Brasilia Caracas Mexico City Rio de Janeiro these are cities synonymous with some of the most innovative and progressive architecture of the twentieth century The period between 1930 and 1960 in particular when many Latin American economies expanded rapidly was an era of incomparable inventiveness and creative production as the various governments strove to shake off their colonial pasts and make public their modernising intentions This book focuses on major state funded architectural projects featuring not only the high profile prestigious building like the House of Representatives in Brasilia but also social architecture such as schools and low cost housing developments Architects like Pani Costa Reidy and Niemeyer who undertook this work with considerable autonomy and significant financial resources in effect became social planners their avant garde aesthetic and technical experimentation often being teamed with radical social agendas By 1960 the year in which Brasilia was inaugurated economic growth in the region was slowing and faith in the modernist project in general was faltering The English speaking world which had previously endorsed and even envied Latin American architectural production changed its opinion and largely dismissed it from the history of twentieth century architecture Building the New World redresses the balance It provides an accessible introduction to the most important examples of state funded modernism in Latin America during a period of almost unimaginable optimism when politicians and architects saw architecture as literally a way of building themselves out of underdevelopment and into the new world of a culturally rich and socially inclusive future
