Putting Science in Its Place David N. Livingstone, 2010-04-15 We are accustomed to thinking of science and its findings as universal After all one atom of carbon plus two of oxygen yields carbon dioxide in Amazonia as well as in Alaska a scientist in Bombay can use the same materials and techniques to challenge the work of a scientist in New York and of course the laws of gravity apply worldwide Why then should the spaces where science is done matter at all David N Livingstone here puts that question to the test with his fascinating study of how science bears the marks of its place of production Putting Science in Its Place establishes the fundamental importance of geography in both the generation and the consumption of scientific knowledge using historical examples of the many places where science has been practiced Livingstone first turns his attention to some of the specific sites where science has been made the laboratory museum and botanical garden to name some of the more conventional locales but also places like the coffeehouse and cathedral ship s deck and asylum even the human body itself In each case he reveals just how the space of inquiry has conditioned the investigations carried out there He then describes how on a regional scale provincial cultures have shaped scientific endeavor and how in turn scientific practices have been instrumental in forming local identities Widening his inquiry Livingstone points gently to the fundamental instability of scientific meaning based on case studies of how scientific theories have been received in different locales Putting Science in Its Place powerfully concludes by examining the remarkable mobility of science and the seemingly effortless way it moves around the globe From the reception of Darwin in the land of the Maori to the giraffe that walked from Marseilles to Paris Livingstone shows that place does matter even in the world of science The Garden , 1994

Post Office Department, 1899 Secrets—From—The Garden of Eden and Noah'S Ark Revealed Marian Cebryk, 2017-09-06 Creation is not a single event in time but a process continual into infinity The Garden of Eden is part of this process And as part of this process it is dispersed and deviated into every region of mans world and does not exist any longer as a single entity Gods garden on earth is deviated into every region in the world It is not in one location Now each garden has within its own power of creation accordingly met mankind's needs of the region In different regions are different plants yet the same results affect needs and cures Hence the miracle of the Garden of Eden continues to exist wherever mankind chooses to live Thus the garden will follow mankind wherever he chooses to live in the universe if it meets his perceived basic needs air oxygen potable water and food

The Plants that Shaped Our Gardens David C. Stuart, 2002

Babcock, James Spencer, 2018-03-02 Trajectories meets an urgent need in both undergraduate and graduate study of the Old Testament Too often Old Testament theology focuses on the end product and leaves the process obscured Each chapter of Trajectories provides a clear path connecting biblical research to theological conclusions The final chapter offers a step by step method for completing a thorough hermeneutical analysis framed within a discussion of the gospel message Trajectories also seeks to situate Old Testament theology in relation to global and generational trends influencing the church and evangelical theology The implications of globalization and the rise of millennials on Old Testament theology are critical and thought provoking topics for discussion Chapters in Trajectories are organized thematically so the textbook can serve as a companion study guide to courses in the Old Testament and New Testament In addition the exploration of topics allows each study to link to the New Testament Each chapter concludes with tangible applications for the contemporary Christian church and with questions for group discussion and reflection
