Ethnicity in Medieval Europe, 950-1250 Claire Weeda, 2021 An investigation into how racial stereotypes were created and used in the European Middle Ages Students in twelfth century Paris held slanging matches branding the English drunkards the Germans madmen and the French as arrogant On crusade army recruits from different ethnic backgrounds taunted each other s military skills Men producing ethnography in monasteries and at court drafted derogatory descriptions of peoples dwelling in territories under colonisation questioning their work ethic social organisation religious devotion and humanness Monks listed and ruminated on the alleged traits of Jews Saracens Greeks Saxons and Britons and their acceptance or rejection of Christianity In this radical new approach to representations of nationhood in medieval western Europe the author argues that ethnic stereotypes were constructed and wielded rhetorically to justify property claims flaunt military strength and assert moral and cultural ascendancy over others. The gendered images of ethnicity in circulation reflect a negotiation over self-representations of discipline, rationality and strength juxtaposed with the alleged chaos and weakness of racialised others. Interpreting nationhood through a religious lens, monks and schoolmen explained it as scientifically informed by environmental medicine, an ancient theory that held that location and climate influenced the physical and mental traits of peoples. Drawing on lists of ethnic character traits, school textbooks, medical treatises, proverbs, poetry and chronicles, this book shows that ethnic stereotypes served as rhetorical tools of power, crafting relationships within communities and towards others. A-E Library of Congress. Interpreting the Evolution of Atayal Tribal Textile Patterns Po Hsun Wang, Jie Li, 2025-07-02. This book elucidates findings from an anthropological study that analyzes the patterns of Taiwan's Atayal tribe's fabric in their ethnic dress codes. By analyzing the changes and development of the patterns over time, the authors draw fascinating conclusions regarding the geographical migration and intermarriage practices between indigenous minority groups in Taiwan's history. The book brings new insights within East Asian linguistic anthropology in theorizing about the origins of legends and broader patterns of ethnic migration, integrating the characteristics and relationships among Atayal fabrics and interpreting these relationships in connection with the flow of sub-ethnic groups. In doing so, the book provides rich empirical evidence for anthropologists and migration scholars to better understand the movement of ethnic groups in Taiwan while also establishing a model for how studying textile design can be employed to establish such linkages. The book shows that the composition and changes of ethnic minority patterns have their own internal logic and causes. By studying this, the authors demonstrate how such work might translate intangible and tangible culture into explicit and shareable knowledge and provide a compass for other anthropologists and researchers in the fields of visual and linguistic anthropology, migration studies and ethnic and indigenous cultures in Asia and beyond. Political Frontiers, Ethnic Boundaries and Human Geographies in Chinese History Nicola Di Cosmo, Don J Wyatt, 2005-08-16. Boundaries demanding physical space enclosing political entities and distinguishing social or ethnic groups constitute an essential aspect of historical investigation. It is especially with regard to disciplinary pluralism and historical breadth that this book most clearly departs and distinguishes itself from other works on Chinese boundaries and ethnicity. In addition to history, the disciplines represented in this book include anthropology, particularly ethnography, religion, art history and literary studies. Each of the authors focuses on a distinct period beginning with the Zhou dynasty c. 1100 BCE and ending with the early centuries after the Manchu conquest c. CE 1800, resulting in a chronological sweep of nearly three millennia. Library of Congress Subject Headings Library of Congress. Office for Subject Cataloging Policy, 1990

A Journey of Ethnicity Rie Nakamura, 2020-05-05. The Cham people are thought to be descendants of the kingdoms of Champa located in central Vietnam between the 2nd and 19th centuries. Champa was one of the oldest Hinduized kingdoms in Southeast Asia and became prosperous through maritime trades and its high quality eaglewood from the central highlands made it famous However Champa disappeared from the political map of Southeast Asia after its defeats against the Vietnamese southward expansion The Cham are now one of the 54 state recognized national ethnic groups but Champa s ancient brick structures and temples scattered along central Vietnam attest to its previous glory Champa adapted a number of foreign religions such as Hinduism Buddhism and Islam in the course of its history which made its culture and tradition rich and unique This book is about a journey of understanding what it means to be Cham in the Social Republic of Vietnam It is based on field studies in various Cham villages in three different localities namely the south central coast area Ho Chi Minh City and the Mekong Delta region It is grounded in information gathered through prolonged interactions with Cham individuals over recent decades The book stresses the complexity of Cham communities and the diversity and dynamics of the Cham s understanding of who they are It provides a comprehensive picture of Cham communities and the situation of ethnic minority people of Vietnam in general
