GeoSensor Networks Silvia Nittel,Alexandros Labrinidis,Anthony Stefanidis,2008-08-15 This volume serves as the post conference proceedings for the Second GeoSensor Networks Conference that was held in Boston Massachusetts in October 2006 The conference addressed issues related to the collection management processing and delivery of real time geospatial data using distributed geosensor networks This represents an evolution of the traditional static and centralized geocomputational paradigm to support the collection of both temporally and spatially high resolution up to date data over a broad geographic area and to use sensor networks as actuators in geographic space Sensors in these environments can be static or mobile and can be used to passively collect information about the environment or eventually to actively influence it The research challenges behind this novel paradigm extend the frontiers of traditional GIS research further into computer science addressing issues like data stream processing mobile computing location based services temporal spatial queries over geosensor networks adaptable middleware sensor data integration and mining automated updating of geospatial databases VR modeling and computer vision In order to address these topics the GSN 2006 conference brought together leading experts in these fields and provided a three day forum to present papers and exchange ideas NOAA Technical Memorandum ERL MESA. ,1974 *NOAA Technical Memorandum ERL MESA. The Battle of the Otranto Straits Paul G. Halpern,2004-06-15 Called by some a Mediterranean Jutland the Battle of the Otranto Straits involved warships from Austria Germany Italy Britain and France Although fought by light units with no dreadnoughts involved Otranto was a battle in three dimensions engaging surface vessels aircraft and subsurface weapons both submarines and mines An attempt to halt the movement of submarines into the Adriatic using British drifters armed with nets and mines led to a raid by Austrian light cruisers The Austrians inflicted heavy damage on the drifters but Allied naval forces based at Brindisi cut off their withdrawal. The daylight hours saw a running battle with the Austrians at considerable risk. Heavier Austrian units put out from Cattaro in support and at the climactic moment the Allied light forces had to turn away permitting the Austrians to escape. In the end the Austrians had inflicted more damage than they suffered themselves. The Otranto action shows the difficulties of waging coalition warfare in which diplomatic and national jealousies override military efficiency. Air-Sea Interaction F. Dobson, L. Hasse, R. Davis, 2012-12-06

During the past decade man's centuries old interest in marine meteorology and oceanography has broadened. Ocean and atmosphere are now treated as coupled parts of one system the resulting interest in air sea interaction problems has led to a rapid growth in the sophistication of instruments and measurement techniques. This book has been designed as a reference text which describes along with the instruments themselves the accumulated practical experience of experts engaged in field observations of air sea interactions. It is meant to supplement rather than replace manuals on standard routine observations or instrumentation handbooks. At the inception a textbook was planned which would contain only well tested methods and instruments. It was quickly discovered that for the book to be useful many devices and techniques would have to be included which are still evolving rapidly. The reader is therefore cautioned to take nothing in these pages for granted. Certainly every contributor is an expert but while some are backed up by generations of published work others are pioneers. The choice of topics of course is debatable. The types of observations included are not exhaustive and topics such as marine aerosols and radio tracers are omitted as was the general subject of remote sensing which was felt to be too broad and evolving too rapidly. The guideline adopted in limiting size was maximum usefulness to a trained experimentalist new to the field.

Preventive Methods for Coastal Protection Tarmo Soomere, Ewald Quak, 2013-06-28. The aim of the book is to present for non specialist researchers as well as for experts a comprehensive overview of the background, key ideas, basic methods, implementation details and a selection of solutions offered by a novel technology for the optimisation of the location of dangerous offshore activities in terms of environmental criteria as developed in the course of the BalticWay project. The book consists of two parts. The first part introduces the basic principles of ocean modeling and depicts the long way from the generic principles to the practical modeling of oil spills and of the propagation of other adverse impacts. The second part focuses on the techniques for solving the inverse problem of the quantification of offshore areas with respect to their potential to serve as a source of environmental danger to vulnerable regions such as spawning, nursing or also tourist areas. The chapters are written in a tutorial style, they are mostly self contained and understandable for non specialist researchers and students. They are carefully peer reviewed by international experts. The goal was to produce a book that highlights all key steps, methods, models and data sets it is necessary to combine in order to produce a practically usable technology and/or decision support system for a particular sea region. Thus the book is useful not only as a description and a manual of this particular technology but also as a roadmap highlighting the complicated technical issues of ocean modeling for practical purposes It describes the approaches taken by the authors in an understandable way and thus is useful for educational purposes such as a course in industrially and environmentally relevant applications of ocean modeling Ocean Weather Forecasting Eric P.
