Alcohol, Drugs and Traffic Safety. Proceedings Sidney Kaye, 1985

Drink and drug driving law Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee, 2010-12-02 18% of all drivers killed in road accidents are over the drink drive limit In 2007 based on coroners data but only approximately 3% of drivers in the UK are stopped and tested for alcohol compared to the European average of 16% This report calls for the police to be given an additional power to permit preliminary breath tests as part of any designated drink drive enforcement operation Currently the police may stop any vehicle but can only test the driver's breath if there is an element of suspicion There is concern that a reduction in the blood alcohol concentration limit would send out mixed messages but that the aimed for effectively zero limit is too great a step at present Instead concentration should be on stricter enforcement of the current limit and public education It is felt that the success of Great Britain's drink driving policy to date is largely attributable to the deterrent effect of the current 12 month mandatory disqualification penalty and the Committee supports retaining that penalty The committee also calls for the improvement of the detection of drug driving and to strengthen public perception about the likelihood of drug drivers being caught by the police The Government's commitment to install drug screening devices in every police station by 2012 is welcomed though this interim measure should not eclipse the Government's aim over the medium term to develop and type approve a drug screening device for use at the roadside drawing on relevant experience of doing this in the other parts of the world

The Transport Manager's and Operator's Handbook 2006 David Lowe, 2005-12 the 36th edition of this bestseller for busy fleet operators is the definitive guide for anyone in the road transport industry it presents all the legal requirements in a coherent format as well as offering operational advice and solutions to some of the problems facing the industry new to this edition is the examination of the new road transport directive which inhibits the working hours for lgv drivers and the launch of the new driver smart card further legal updates include the eu driver training directive and the new road safety bill which will introduce tougher penalties and new powers to seize and dispose of uninsured vehicles

Road Policing and Technology Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee,2006-10-31 In 2005 traffic collisions killed 3 201 people with almost 29 000 seriously injured on British roads Although the level of road crash fatalities and injuries has fallen over successive decades and Britain has one of the safest road environments in the world the numbers still remain far too high and many of these casualties might have been avoided if there was a higher level of compliance with traffic law The Committee s report examines the road casualty problem focusing on the role of roads policing and the contribution which enforcement can make to casualty reduction It considers how technology is influencing the policing and enforcement of particular offences relating to speeding drink and drug driving driving whilst using a mobile phone and driving while impaired by fatigue The report finds that despite progress made by the Department for Transport against its 2010 casualty reduction targets the Home Office has continued to deny traffic law enforcement issues the priority it requires and must explicitly adopt the targets as a key part of its future national policing plans Investment and research into new technological equipment such as roadside breath testing equipment and time distance cameras and a higher profile and more visible traffic enforcement effort would bring important casualty reductions However the efficiencies which technology can bring should not be seen as a opportunity to cut the number of roads police officers as technology alone cannot carry out the multitude of functions undertaken by roads police officers

Crime and Punishment in Twentieth Century Ireland Seamus Breathnach,2005 This book was written as part of a much wider criminological enterprise designed at creating a real and critical basis for criminological enquiry in Ireland Properly understood the Criminal Justice System CJS is every bit as important to society as the circular flow of money No government would dream of conducting its business without the advice of an economist or indeed providing an econometric model of the economy Yet when it comes to the CJS governments take the opposite view and legislate in the dark hardly reconnoitering for a moment to see what effect proposed legislation will have on the several institutions it invariably affects Maybe this was okay when those effects could not be calculated But such is no longer the case In 1967 a President s Commission on Law Enforcement and the Administration of Justice featured a model of criminal justice entitled The Challenge of Crime in a Free Society Incredibly misunderstood and widely neglected this model marked a breakthrough the first step as it were in coming to terms with the multiple agencies that go to make up what has come to be called the Criminal Justice System CJS In Volumes 2 and 3 of the present series Seamus Breathnach traces the initial steps necessary to complete the revolution begun by the President's Commission. In doing this he reveals the systematized neglect of the CJS in the Republic of Ireland for years 1950-80. In eight lectures he delineates the Republic's inability to get its act together or to engage the terms or significance of the 67 landmark an inability that is anchored both in a deep religious resistance to the secular social sciences as well as an exaggerated estimation of the criminal lawyer as social commentator. From this study it appears that the first step for criminologists is to see the CJS as a totality to see it as a social process clamoring to be rescued from the spokesmen of the discrete agencies that comprise it.
