Dreaming Of Love Chinese Text 326:

The Art of Dreams Barbara Hahn, Meike Werner, 2016-08-22 We all dream we all share these strange experiences that infuse our nights But we only know of those nightly adventures when we decide to represent them In the long history of coming to terms with dreams there seem to be two different ways of delineating our forays into the world of the unconscious One is the attempt of interpreting of unveiling the hidden meaning of dreams The other one is not so much concerned with the relation of dream and meaning of dream and reality it rather concentrates on trying to find means of representation for this extremely productive force that determines our sleep The essays collected in this book explore both attempts They follow debates in philosophy and psychoanalysis and they study literature theatre dance film and photography Shanghai Love Catherine Vance Yeh, 2006 In this fascinating book Catherine Yeh explores the Shanghai entertainment world at the close of the Qing dynasty Established in the 1850s outside of the old walled city the Shanghai Foreign Settlements were administered by Westerners and so were not subject to the strict authority of the Chinese government At the center of the dynamic new culture that emerged was the courtesan whose flamboyant public lifestyle and conspicuous consumption of modern goods set a style that was emulated by other women as they emerged from the inner quarters of traditional Chinese society Many Chinese visitors and sojourners were drawn to the Foreign Settlements Men of letters seeking a living outside of the government bureaucracy found work in the Settlements burgeoning print industry and formed the new class of urban intellectuals Courtesans fled from oppressive treatment and the turmoil of uprisings elsewhere in China and found unprecedented freedom in Shanghai to redefine themselves and their profession As the entertainment industry developed publications sprang up to report on and promote it Journalists and courtesans found that their interests increasingly coincided and the Settlements became a cosmopolitan playground Ritualized role play based on novels such as Dream of the Red Chamber elevated the status of courtesan entertainment and led to culturally rich interactions between courtesans and their clients As participants acted out the stories in public they introduced modern notions of love and romance that were radically at odds with the traditional roles of men and women Yet because social change arrived in the form of entertainment it met with little resistance Yeh shows how this fortuitous combination of people and circumstances rather than official decisions or acts created the first multicultural modern city in China With illustrations from newspapers novels travel guides and postcards as well as contemporary written descriptions of life in foreign driven fast paced cutting edge Shanghai this study traces the mutual influences among courtesans intellectuals and the city itself in creating a modern market oriented leisure culture in China Historians literary specialists art critics and social scientists will welcome this captivating foray into the world of late nineteenth century popular culture Wisdom for the Soul Larry Chang, 2006 Five Millennia of Prescriptions for Spiritual Healing Handbook of Chinese Migration to Europe, 2024-12-09 Editors in Chief Mette Thuno and Simeng Wang Associate Editors Emilie Tran Sautede and Yu chin Tseng The Handbook of Chinese Migration to Europe

In the years since the death of Mao Zedong, interest in Chinese writers and Chinese literature has risen significantly in the West. In 2000, Gao Xingjian became the first Chinese writer to receive the Nobel Prize for Literature, followed by Mo Yan in 2012, and writers such as Ha Jin and Da Sijie have also become well known in the West. Despite this progress, the vast majority of Chinese writers remain largely unknown outside of China. This book introduces the lives and works of eighty contemporary Chinese writers and focuses on writers from the Rightist generation (Bai Hua, Gao Xiaosheng, Liu Shaotang), writers of the Red Guard generation (Li Rui, Wang Anyi), Post-Cultural Revolution Writers, as well as others. Unlike earlier works, it provides detailed, often first-hand biographical information on this wide range of writers, including their career trajectories, major themes, and artistic characteristics. In addition to this, each entry includes a critical presentation and evaluation of the writer's major works, a selected bibliography of publications that includes works in Chinese, works translated into English, and critical articles and books available in English. Offering a valuable contribution to the field of contemporary Chinese literature by making detailed information about Chinese writers more accessible, this book will be of interest to students and scholars.

New Woman in Early Twentieth-Century Chinese Fiction Jin Feng, 2004-07-30

In The New Woman in Early Twentieth-Century Chinese Fiction, Jin Feng proposes that representation of the new woman in Communist Chinese fiction of the earlier twentieth century was paradoxically one of the ways in which male writers of the era explored, negotiated, and laid claim to their own emerging identity as modern intellectuals. Specifically, Feng argues that male writers such as Lu Xun, Yu Dafu, Ba Jin, and Mao Dun created fictional women as mirror images of their own political inadequacy, but that at the same time this was also an egocentric ploy to affirm and highlight the modernity of the male author. This gender-biased attitude was translated into reality when women writers emerged. Whereas unfair gender-biased criticism all but stifled the creative output of Bing Xin, Fang Yuanjun, and Lu Yin, Ding Ling's dogged attention to narrative strategy allowed her to maintain subjectivity and independence in her writings that is until all writers were forced to write for the collective. Feng addresses both the general and the specialized audience of fiction in early twentieth-century Chinese fiction in three ways: for scholars of the May Fourth period, Feng redresses the emphasis on the simplistic gender-neutral representation of the new women by re-reading selected texts in the light of marginalized discourse and by an analysis of the evolving strategies of narrative deployment for those working in the area of feminism and literary studies Feng develops a new method of studying the representation of Chinese women through an interrogation of narrative permutations ideological discourses and gender relationships and for studies of modernity and modernization the author presents a more complex picture of the relationships of modern Chinese intellectuals to their cultural past and of women writers to a literary tradition dominated by men "And Never Know the Joy" ,2016-08-29
