Agreement And Anti Agreement:

Agreement and Anti-Agreement Susan Steele, 2012-12-06      Movement in Language Norvin Richards, 2001 This book is the most comprehensive integrated explanatory account yet published of the properties of question formations and their variation across languages. It makes an important contribution to the current debate over whether syntax should be understood derivationally, arguing that the best model of language is one in which sentences are constructed in a series of operations that precede or follow each other in time. The central problem it addresses is the nature of the difference between a languages in which all wh words move overtly to a clause initial position exemplified by Bulgarian b languages in which one wh phrase moves per clause but all others remain in situ exemplified by English and c languages in which there is no overt movement at all exemplified by Japanese. Professor Richards focuses on the nature of syntactic movement in order to see what this reveals about the syntactic derivation. He considers the nature of interactions between movement operations and investigates the behaviour of multiple overt wh movement, scrambling, cliticization and object shift. His general conclusions about the relationship between movement and multiple specifiers follow straightforwardly from basic principles of Shortest Move and Shortest Attract. He develops a PF imposed well formedness condition on movement chains, essentially a requirement that a single member of the chain be unambiguously identified as the copy to be pronounced, which allows for the development of theories of anti-agreement, the trace effect and the conditions on participial agreement in Romance among other phenomena. He defends the claim that well formed dependencies can improve the status of ill formed dependencies created later in the derivation, illustrating the explanatory power under certain structural conditions of his Principle of Minimal Compliance. He uses data on the locality of wh movement to argue that the Principle of Minimal Compliance is responsible for a number of the apparent distinctions between overt and covert movement. This book will interest syntacticians at graduate level and above as well as linguistic theorists concerned with the syntax-semantics interface.

Competition Law, Technology Transfer and the TRIPS Agreement Tu Thanh Nguyen, 2010-01-01 The book deals with a difficult subject with an assured touch and will be a valuable text for postgraduate students, policy makers and practitioners. European Intellectual Property Review This is the first ever book that addresses the important issue of the competition law, intellectual property and trade interface in a developing world context. The book's unique contribution is a set of comparative case studies on this complex interface. D. Daniel Sokol, University of Florida Levin College of Law, US. The book investigates competition law and international technology transfer in the light of the TRIPS Agreement and the experience of both developed and developing countries. On that basis, it draws relevant implications for developing countries. Tu Thanh Nguyen argues that technology transfer related competition law should be globalized appropriately for the needs of local contexts while intellectual property rights (IPR) are globalized. The book reveals that developing countries, according to the TRIPS Agreement, have the right to use domestic competition law to promote access to technology in order to protect national interests and consumer welfare However competition law is antitrust It is neither anti IPR nor anti trade The author finds that developing countries with limited competition law resources should set realistic priorities for the control of technology transfer related anti competitive practices They can reasonably apply and adapt relevant regulations decisions and judgments from developed country jurisdictions to their own circumstances Competition Law Technology Transfer and the TRIPs Agreement is a timely resource for postgraduate students practitioners and scholars in international competition law IPR and technology transfer Policymakers in the field of technology transfer related competition law policy especially in developing countries will also find this book invaluable

Regional Trade Agreements and the Multilateral Trading System Rohini Acharya, 2016-09-22 This volume contains a collection of studies examining trade related issues negotiated in regional trade agreements RTAs and how RTAs are related to the WTO's rules While previous work has focused on subsets of RTAs these studies are based on what is probably the largest dataset used to date and highlight key issues that have been negotiated in all RTAs notified to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade GATT and the World Trade Organization WTO New rules within RTAs are compared to rules agreed upon by WTO members The extent of their divergences and the potential implications for parties to RTAs as well as for WTO members that are not parties to RTAs are examined This volume makes an important contribution to the current debate on the role of the WTO in regulating international trade and how WTO rules relate to new rules being developed by RTAs

Trade Agreements at the Crossroads Susy Frankel, Meredith Lewis, 2013-11-20 The book examines trade agreements in the context of the current world economic crisis and the uncompleted World Trade Organization WTO Doha Round of trade negotiations With economies shrinking and protectionism on the rise many fear a protracted global recession This raises important questions as to what role trade agreements multilateral plurilateral and bilateral should be playing in the current climate of uncertainty and how best to plan for a more stable economic future Previous assumptions are now being questioned making this an opportune time to critically examine the WTO free trade agreements bilateral investment treaties and other international economic law instruments Furthermore participants in international agreements are concerned with emerging issues that have the potential to strengthen or weaken the global trading system including matters of treaty interpretation terms of new agreements and effects of existing provisions This book provides a timely addition to the international economic law literature as its submissions have been prepared during a time of unusual uncertainty and economic change individuals interested in international economic law will seek scholarship that recognizes the current international economic climate This book should be of interest to a wide range of academics and student researchers as well as policymakers and practitioners
