

Problems of Agricultural labour in India: A critical analysis

Dr.DEEPU.P¹

“ Labour is the real measure of the exchangeable value of all commodities .the real price of the everything , what everything real cost to the man who wants to acquire it , is the toil and trouble of acquiring it”

- Adam smith

Abstract:

As we are aware that near about 53% population of India is engaged in agricultural activities. It is increased after covid 19 but agriculture in India is still at mercy of monsoon. Here, the condition of the farmers and agricultural labourers depend on the intensity of monsoon. If monsoon is good then crop is good and vice-versa. Agriculture labour is counted in the category of unorganized sector, so their income is not fixed. Hence they are living an insecure and underprivileged life and earning just Rs. 150/day along with full uncertainty. The agricultural labourers are one of the most exploited and oppressed classes in rural hierarchy. Here the researcher highlights the problems of agriculture labour and pointed out some of the suggestions.

Women in Agriculture Worldwide Amber Fletcher,Wendee Kubik,2016-07-01 Over the past two decades existing documentation of women in the agricultural sector has surveyed topics such as agricultural restructuring and land reform international trade agreements and food trade land ownership and rural development and rural feminisms Many studies have focused on either the high income countries of the global North or the low income countries of the global South This separation suggests that the North has little to learn from the South or that there is little shared commonality across the global dividing line Fletcher and Kubik cross this political economic and ideological division by drawing together authors from 5 continents They discuss the situation for women in agriculture in 13 countries worldwide with two chapters that cover international contexts The authors blur the boundaries between academic and organizational authors and their contributors include university based researchers gender experts development consultants and staff of agricultural research centers and international organizations i e Oxfam the United Nations World Food Program The common thread connecting these diverse authors is an emphasis on practical and concrete solutions to address the challenges such as lack of access to resources and infrastructure lack of household decision making power and gender biases in policymaking and leadership still faced by women in agriculture around the world Ongoing issues in climate change will exacerbate many of these issues and several chapters also address environment and sustainability This book is of great interest to readers in the areas of gender studies agriculture policy studies environmental studies development and international studies Ecologically Mediated
