Huang, 1998-01-13 Chinese agriculture has experienced some radical changes over the past twenty years Following the successful introduction of the household production system in the early 1980s difficulties were encountered in establishing a unified domestic agricultural market in the later 1980s and 1990s Through a comprehensive analysis of the changes in the Chinese agricultural institutions between the late 1970s and the mid 1990s this study attempts to provide some answers to the main questions presently facing the agricultural sector It focuses on the key elements of the pre reform agricultural institutions reviews the ways these institutions were refashioned and assesses the resulting changes in agricultural development The implications of different policy choices are carefully considered with the assistance of a computable general equilibrium model The author argues that China should push forward with its market oriented reform measures and introduce the rigours of international competition into the agricultural sector China's New Industrialization Strategy

Y. Y. Kueh, 2008-01-01 The book is a scholarly attempt to place the post Mao reforms in China in the context of developments in the Soviet Union and the Eastern European countries The essays written in different periods have mostly been thoroughly rewritten extended updated and refocused in the light of recent developments and demonstrate conclusively that Dengist reforms were not a clean break from the past as many ideologically blinkered Western Sinologists readily assume the reforms succeeded mainly because the post Mao regime had inherited a solid economic and political edifice created during the Mao era Radha Sinha Glasgow University UK Professor Kueh is one of the most original and prolific scholars in the field of communist Chinese studies In this collection we can read fully updated versions of many of his most important contributions to our understanding of the Chinese economy in both its domestic and foreign dimensions Most of these articles are now hard to get hold of and this new volume is therefore a most welcome addition to the literature Christopher Howe University of Sheffield UK Y Y Kueh in this stimulating collection of essays written over a career studying China's economy spanning more than three decades argues the proposition that there were important elements of continuity in the transition of economic thinking from Mao Zedong to Deng Xiaoping The argument is controversial but scholars and students alike will gain insight into the economic development strategies of China from reading these carefully reasoned studies They will challenge many of the common assumptions about the nature of China's transition from central planning to the market Dwight H Perkins Harvard University US Deng Xiaoping's economic strategy is widely regarded as a complete anathema to Mao's but this study strongly argues that without the material foundations laid by Mao it would have been very difficult for

Deng to launch his reform and open door policy Deng basically shared Mao's aspirations and approach in pursuit of China's industrialization and this had in fact helped to condition him to the successful gradualist methodology Deng lost patience at times and resorted to the big bang strategy only to fail miserably Taken together the book tells a new story about the economics of China's transition This is a highly thought provoking study blending institutional and convincing statistical analysis It will appeal to scholars and academics interested in the background and process of China emerging as an economic giant and especially to students of economics politics international business and globalization studies who aspire to an alternative non Left re interpretation of Mao's legacy Farmland, Farming and Food in the National Economy of China, 1947 - 2020 Jane Du, 2024-11-29 This book presents a concise yet detailed analysis of China's agricultural economy and food security in historical perspective The book begins with an overview of China's socialist economic transition and Deng Xiaoping's reforms with an emphasis on agricultural economy and food production before discussing China's food industry and security in more recent years Combining accessible qualitative interpretations with a rich data set the author analyses the transitions and evolving policies in China's agricultural production and shows how these are essential for understanding contemporary food security challenges in the country Covering topics including food imports and supply dietary changes international trade policies and other geopolitical factors impacting food security the book presents new insights into the interplay between domestic and international systems Bridging gaps between historical understanding and contemporary policy relevance this book will be useful reading for researchers in varied disciplines including economic history agricultural economics China's economy and economic development Political Economy Of Deng's Nanxun, The: Breakthrough In China's Reform And Development John Wong, 2014-03-12 This volume is about the political economy of Deng Xiaoping's Nanxun tour of South China which was the most critical phase in China's reform and development since 1978 The first round of Deng's reform resulted in high growth through the 1980s However it created a messy half reformed economy with many problems including the Tiananmen incident The immediate aftermath of the Tiananmen was collapse of economic growth and reform deadlock To break out from this low level reform growth trap Deng decided to launch the Nanxun not just to reignite the reform but also to complete China's march towards a market economy Looking back the Nanxun led to the most crucial reform breakthrough which in turn sparked off a dynamic reform growth nexus for China's eventual economic take off The chapters in this volume were originally policy reports on China meant for the Singapore government These reports were written based on the information available at that time and reflected the prevailing political mood Each chapter is accompanied by a detailed introduction that is aimed at providing a broad background for readers to better understand the Nanxun period The introduction also serves as a post evaluation of the events based on new information and shows how those events have evolved over the years In combination these chapters should piece together a reasonably realistic picture of the basic politics and economics of the crucial Nanxun period China's Economic Reform Robert Ash, Christopher

Howe, Y Y Kueh, Y. Y. Kueh, 2013-10-18 This book presents a collection and analysis of original policy documents newly translated into English from a key period of Chinese development providing both a current and a retrospective analysis of China's economic reform efforts Topics dealt with include the evolution of Chinese economic strategy economic planning and the spread of market mechanisms technology transfer in industry evolution of an agricultural system the development of population policy and foreign economic relations The collection will be of great interest not only to scholars and students of Chinese studies but also to professionals and social scientists concerned with China but unable to read source documents in Chinese Problems of Communism, 1989 Reform and Development in China Yang Yao, Ho-Mou Wu, 2010-09-13 Between 1978 and 2006 GDP growth in China maintained an annual average rate of 9.7% meaning the Chinese economy increased by more than twelve times This was achieved with quite unorthodox approaches to reform and development as China has adopted a gradualist approach to adopting key institutions as well as modifying and experimenting with traditional recipes for economic growth This collection brings together key researchers in the field from Asia US Europe and Australia to discuss how China has managed to push forward reforms in the face of political resistance how the Chinese economy has maintained growth within an imperfect institutional environment and how the Chinese government remains effective when it relinquishes its power to the market Specific emphasis is paid to the relevance of China's experiences to other developing countries This valuable contribution to the study of China's economy covers a wide range of topics including the historical foundations of the 30 years of reform law and development in China foreign direct investment poverty reduction market integration income distribution social protection as well as demographics and population Reform and Development in China finds both unique elements to the Chinese experience and elements which can be applied to other developing countries In particular China's gradualism in economic reform strong leadership and emphasis on inclusive development are singled out to be potentially transferable to other developing countries This collection will be of interest to postgraduate students and researchers as well as practitioners in development economics ERS Staff Report, 1990 China's Agricultural Development Xiao-yuan Dong, Shunfeng Song, Xiaobo Zhang, 2006 This book identifies the main challenges Chinese agriculture is confronting and considers how these challenges might be met The performance of China's agricultural production and factors that affect agricultural productivity are comprehensively assessed The Third Revolution in the Chinese Countryside Ross Garnaut, Guo Shutian, Ma Guonan, 1996-04-18 The first revolution in the Chinese countryside was the land reform implemented in the liberated areas and extended throughout China after the proclamation of the People's Republic of China in 1949 This was important in the consolidation of the Communist Party's political power The second revolution was the decollectivization of agriculture and the shift to the household responsibility system as a basis for agricultural production The phenomenal increase in Chinese agricultural output from 1978 to 1984 resulted partly from the new system of production and with a resulting explosion of farm incomes The second revolution in the Chinese countryside from the late 1970s set the scene for the third revolution the freeing of markets for farm products and the linking of domestic markets and international markets The third revolution is still in progress and this book explores its beginnings Initially the book covers the issues of poverty in China and feeding the population The second section describes the agricultural markets in China and the price reform of agricultural products The next two parts discuss international and regional issues of China s agricultural economy Finally there are contributions on what institutional changes have been associated with the third agricultural revolution The contributions are from a team of experts on the Chinese economy from inside and outside China led by Professor Garnaut Comparative Economic Systems Richard L. Carson,1997-12-30 This updated examination of transitional economies such as Russia and China draws on the experiences of other East European transforming economies It profiles the Japanese and Swedish economies as examples of capitalist systems and draws on the experiences of other Asian economies China's Grain Economy Liming Wang,John Davis,2019-06-03 This book was originally published in 2000 China is the largest developing country in the world and is still heavily based on agriculture Currently about 70 per cent of China s total of more than one bilion people live in rural areas and about half of the total national labour force is involved in agricultural activities It is clear that agriculture is the foundation for the development of the Chinese national economy Within agriculture the grain economy is the most important sector indeed it has been recognised as a treasure in managing the country by all past Chinese dynasties Ensuring enough grain supply to meet the demands of such a huge population seems to be a long term goal for the Chinese government and this book explores whether China will be able to produce enough grain to keep pace with its population increases
