Agrarian History of the Cuban Revolution Joana Salém Vasconcelos, 2023-03-27 In Agrarian History of the Cuban Revolution the Brazilian historian Joana Sal m Vasconcelos presents in clear language the complicated challenge of overcoming the condition of Latin America s underdevelopment through a revolutionary process Based on diverse historical sources she demonstrates why the sugar plantation economic structure in Cuba was not entirely changed by the 1959 Revolution The author narrates in detail the three dimensions of Cuban agrarian transformation during the decisive 1960s the land tenure system the crop regime and the labour regime and its social and political actors She explains the paths and detours of Cuban agrarian policies contextualized in a labour intensive economy that needs desperately to increase productivity and at the same time promised widely to emancipate workers from labour exploitation Cuban agrarian and economic contradictions are well synthetized with the concept of Peripheral Socialism

Labour, Land, and Capital in Ghana Gareth Austin, 2005 An examination of the varied ways outside and inside markets in which Asante producers obtained labor land and capital during the transformative era This is a study of the changing rules and relationships within which natural human and man made resources were mobilized for production during the development of an agricultural export economy in Asante a major West African kingdom which became by 1945 the biggest regional contributor to Ghana's status as the world's largest cocoa producer The period 1807-1956 as a whole was distinguished in Asante history by relatively favorable political conditions for indigenous as well as during colonial rule for foreign private enterprise It saw generally increasing external demands for products that could be produced on Asante land This book which fills a major gap in Asante economic history transcends the traditional divide between studies of precolonial and of twentieth century African history It analyses the interaction of coercion and the market in the context of a rich but fragile natural environment the central process being a transition from slavery and debt bondage to hired labor and agricultural indebtedness It contributes to the broad debate about Africa's historic combination of emerging capitalist institutions and persistent precapitalist ones and tests the major theories of the political economy of institutional change It is written accessibly for an interdisciplinary readership Gareth Austin is a lecturer in Economic History London School of Economics and Political Science and Joint Editor of the Journal of African History

A History of Underdevelopment and Political Economy of Inflation in Sri Lanka Dhanusha Gihan Pathirana, Chandana Aluthge, 2020-07-24 The book provides a new conceptualisation of inflation in underdeveloped economies through Sri Lanka's historical experience It outlines a general theory of nationalisms in their diverse manifestations across the world within a historical perspective of capitalist development and underdevelopment The book therefore seeks to capture the production mode holistically within both its infrastructural and superstructural levels probing their interactions The theoretical structure through which inflation is analysed synthesises the theory of unproductive labour and Marxian theory of prices of production with labour surplus theory of late Dr S B D De Silva in the context of underdevelopment In this light Professor David Laibman's Allocation Problem is resolved within a Marxist framework to provide an operational significance to the theory and its application In the same vein the book also provides a new theoretical interpretation of Sri Lanka's historical development from the British period onwards through application of theories of capitalist development and surplus labour
