Building the Borderlands: A Transnational History of Irrigated Cotton along the Mexico-Texas Border Casey Walsh, 2008 Cotton crucial to the economy of the American South has also played a vital role in the making of the Mexican north The Lower Rio Bravo Rio Grande Valley irrigation zone on the border with Texas in northern Tamaulipas Mexico was the centerpiece of the Cardenas government's effort to make cotton the basis of the national economy This irrigation district built and settled by Mexican Americans repatriated from Texas was a central feature of Mexico's effort to control and use the waters of the international river for irrigated agriculture Drawing on previously unexplored archival sources Casey Walsh discusses the relations among various groups comprising the social field of cotton production in the borderlands By describing the complex relationships among these groups Walsh contributes to a clearer understanding of capitalism and the state of transnational economic forces of agricultural and water issues in the U S Mexican borderlands and of the environmental impacts of economic development Building the Borderlands crosses a number of disciplinary thematic and regional frontiers integrating perspectives and literature from the United States and Mexico from anthropology and history and from political economic and cultural studies Walsh's important transnational study will enjoy a wide audience among scholars of Latin American and Western U S history the borderlands and environmental and agricultural history as well as anthropologists and others interested in the environment and water rights Border Oasis Evan R. Ward, 2015-07-10 Border Oasis tells how two very different nations developed the delta into an agricultural oasis at enormous environmental cost

Focusing on the years 1940 to 1975 including the disastrous salinity crisis of the 1960s and 1970s it combines Mexican Native American and U S perspectives to demonstrate that the political and diplomatic influences on the delta played as much a part in the region s transformation as did irrigation Ward reveals how mistrust among political and economic participants has been fueled by conflict between national and local officials on both sides of the border by Mexican nationalism and by a mutual recognition that water is the critical ingredient for regional economic development University of Arizona Press website

Subsidizing Capitalism Tamar Diana Wilson,2012-02-01 In Mexico self employed brickmakers support capitalist enterprise by providing bricks to build hotels factories office buildings and shopping malls at costs lower than those based on profit making principles Combining Chayanovian and neo Marxist approaches Subsidizing Capitalism asserts that the economic activities of these self employed brickmakers may be considered counterhegemonic because they avoid proletarianization in the formal sector Tamar Diana Wilson discusses the similarities between peasants and brickmakers the structural position of garbage pickers in relation to brickmakers the trajectory from piece worker to petty commodity producer to petty capitalist the economic value of women s and children s work as part of the family labor force and how the neopatriarchal household is intrinsic to petty commodity production Interspersed throughout are short stories and poems that offer the brickmakers perspectives and provide a rarely seen look into their lives
