Andrew Carnegie Builder Of Libraries:

Andrew Carnegie Charnan Simon,1998-03 Describes the efforts of Andrew Carnegie to build public libraries as a way of improving community life in Pittsburgh and other places Free and Public Ralph A. Griffiths,2021-06-15 The first study of the Carnegie libraries built in Wales in the Edwardian Age As the richest man in the world the book illustrates Carnegie s commitment to the provision of free and public libraries for all regardless of age and gender The buildings were and in many cases still are at the heart of towns and industrial communities across Wales as they were elsewhere in the USA and the British Empire The libraries shed light on the social political cultural and architectural history of Edwardian Wales Free to All Abigail A. Van Slyck,1995 Familiar Landmarks in hundreds of American towns Carnegie libraries have shaped the public library experience of generations of Americans and today seen far from controversial In Free to All however Abigail Van Slyck shows that the classical facades and symmetrical plans of these buildings often mask the complex and contentious circumstances of their construction and use Free to All is the first comprehensive social and architectural history of the Carnegie library phenomenon an unprecedented program of philanthropy that helped erect over 1600 public library buildings in the United States Van Slyck skillfully untangles the overlapping and conflicting motives of the many people involved in erecting staffing and using the libraries Andrew Carnegie himself small town civic boosters avid for new investment metropolitan library trustees anxious to maintain the elite character of urban libraries architects reacting to increased professional specialization a growing number of female librarians and the children and adults frequently immigrants who came to borrow books Carnegie Libraries of Ohio Mary Ellen Armentrout,2003 Public Library Construction ,1978 Public Library Construction, 1965-1978 ,1978 Philanthropy and Light Oriel Prizeman,2016-04-22 Walter Gropius associated standardisation with promoting civilisation in 1935 yet Andrew Carnegie s influence on the proliferation of pattern book public library plans internationally predated these observations by 50 years Through the first twenty years of his programme he supported the erection of almost three thousand public buildings across Britain and America Though better acknowledged in the US than the UK this philanthropic contribution radically extended the scope of public provision and remains incomparable in its scale and scope in both nations Frequently engraved with the self deifying slogan Let there be Light open access to navigate these new interior public spaces after work coincided with the first provision of electric light Towards the end of the nineteenth century professional groups had sought to specify minimum standards of natural light and air for schools and hospitals However the commercial quantification of electricity accelerated the development of a readily comparable vocabulary to prescribe adequate quantities of light for all tasks regardless of their location or orientation Seeking to gauge the extent of universal values this book concentrates on the design and performance of a handful of early Carnegie library buildings in Britain and America identifying their response to contemporary design theory but also by contrast to their respective local environmental contexts It examines whether their standards of provision were equitable and if these privately financed public buildings were the first roots of generically standardised public environments to be shared transatlantically The book also argues that the public library building type can provide a datum for acknowledging the twentieth century legacy of shared international environmental standards for public spaces more broadly

Influence of funding on advances in librarianship Danuta A. Nitecki, Eileen G. Abels, 2008-12-05 Addresses the influence of research funding on advances in libraries and librarianship from two perspectives funding agents and specific initiatives
