Ascochyta Blight and Winter Sowing of Chickpeas: Proceedings of the Workshop on Ascochyta Blight and Winter Sowing of Chickpeas M.C. Saxena, K.B. Singh, 1984 Ascochyta Blight and Winter Sowing of Chickpeas International Center for Agricultural Research in the Dry Areas, Advances in Ascochyta Research Diego Rubiales, Sara Fondevilla, Weidong Chen, Jennifer Davidson, 2018-12-21 Legume crops provide an excellent source of high quality plant protein and have a key role in arable crop rotations reducing the need for fertilizer application and acting as break crops. However, these crops are affected by a number of foliar and root diseases, being ascochyta blights the most important group of diseases worldwide. Ascochyta blights are incited by different pathogens in the various legumes. A number of control strategies have been developed, including resistance breeding, cultural practices, and chemical control. However, only marginal successes have been achieved in most instances, most control methods being uneconomical, hard to achieve, or resulting in incomplete protection. This eBook covers recent advances in cooperative research on these diseases from agronomy to breeding, covering traditional and modern genomic methodologies. Chickpea Breeding and Management Shyam S. Yadav, W. Chen, 2007 The chickpea is an ancient crop that is still important in both developed and developing nations. This authoritative account by international experts covers all aspects of chickpea breeding and management and the integrated pest management and biotechnology applications that are important to its improvement. With topics covered including origin and taxonomy, ecology, distribution, and genetics, this book combines the many and varied research issues impacting on production and utilization of the chickpea crop on its journey from paddock to plate. Horizons, 1983 Solving The Pulses Crisis B. Gangwar, 2013-01-21 India has achieved self-sufficiency in food grain production in recent years with record production of 250 mt during 2011-12. However, the pulses production remained low and considered to be the major concern for researchers and development planners. Considering the much more importance in the near future and to avoid a pulses crisis situation, the present attempt was made to compile the available scientific information so as to highlight the issues, technologies, and strategies in the title of Solving Pulses Crisis in India. The publication is divided into two parts. The first part deals with national issues, technologies, and strategies, while the second part deals with crop-based issues and technologies. The first part consists of 13 sections. The first three sections deal with pulses-related national issues, technologies, and strategies, including NEH region too. The IV deals with crop diversification involving pulses, while V focused on pulses production under organic system. The issues related to legumes as a nutrient supplement in VI, tillage and crop establishment in VII, water management in pulses in VIII and Integrated nutrient management in IX are discussed in detail The aspects of weed and pest management are presented in X to XI respectively The specific issues related to post harvest value addition are discussed in XII while trade related policy issues are focused in XIII In part second the crop issues strategies and technologies are presented Accordingly XIV deals with pigeonpea while in XV issues related to green gram and black gram are discussed The XVI to XIX deals with chickpea lentil field pea and lathyrus while in XX the issues technologies and prospects of Guar are discussed In last XXI the issues and technologies related to arid legumes mothbean cowpea and horsegram with special reference to arid areas are discussed Hopefully the publication will prove to be a reference and a way forward for solving pulses crisis in India and achieving the targets matching with food production strategies in years to come Integrated Pest And Disease Management K. G. Mukerji Rajeev H. Upadhyay, O B. P. Chamola, P. Dueby, 2009 The present book consist of 30 reviews on important pest and diseases of cash cereals oilseed vegetables fodders fruits and pulses etc Most of these articles have been prepared by authorities in their receptive areas There is worldwide swing to the use of ecologically safe environment friendly methods of protecting crops from pests and pathogens Biological Resource Management in Agriculture Innovative Soil-Plant Systems for Sustainable Agricultural Practices OECD, The Scientific and Technical Research Council of Turkey, 2003-03-31 Proceedings of a conference on innovative systems for preserving the quality of soil used in agriculture

Genetic Resources and Their Exploitation — Chickpeas, Faba beans and Lentils J.R. Witcombe, W.

Erskine, 2012-12-06 Chickpeas faba beans and lentils are important pulse crops in the Mediterranean region and Middle East where their high protein seed nutritionally complement cereal grain in the human diet The by products of these crops serve as a valuable feed for animals Thanks to their ability to fix atmospheric nitrogen the inclusion of these crops in the cropping system helps in the maintenance of the productivity of the soil and reduces the dependence of the farmer on fertilizer nitrogen to realise good yields Being the site of original domestication of these legumes the Fertile Crescent is believed to possess their vast genetic diversity In order to prevent the erosion of this genetic diversity and to preserve it for posterity it is necessary that a major effort is made for its expeditious collection evaluation documentation and safe storage The International Center for Agricultural Research in the Dry Areas ICARDA being located in the Fertile Crescent has within its mandate the responsibility to act as a world centre for the work on the genetic resources of kabuli chickpeas faba beans and lentils The International Board of Plant Genetic Resources IBPGR has been strongly supporting ICARDA in this important activity Diseases of Field Crops Vinod Kumar Gupta, Y. S. Paul, 2002 Contributed articles Integrated Disease Management and Plant Health V. K. Gupta, R. C. Sharma, 2012-05-02 The book is divided into different sections to facilitate the readers to get in touch with the subject of their interest The sections though self explanatory have been divided crop wise with further classification according to causal organisms Since mushrooms are a developing industry a section has been added on that too This book will provide an insight into the pathological problems of different crops and help the reader to have broader view of different scientific methods being used to manage them Advances in Agronomy, 1991-06-13

Advances in Agronomy Challenges and Strategies of Dryland Agriculture S.C. Rao, 2011-01-01 The world has made remarkable progress in maintaining adequate food supplies during the past quarter century by introducing yield increasing technologies such as better genetics crop protection products and more efficient use of fertilizers and irrigations Far more people depend on irrigation in the modern world than during the times of ancient Sumeria The spread of irrigation has been the key factor in increasing global crop yields But future scarcity presents the single biggest threat to future food production The shift of water from agriculture to the growing cities and industry almost certainly will impact global food production This means that dryland agriculture will be increasingly important in meeting food requirements for the growing population Advances in plant genetics and agronomic conservation technologies when considered in concert continue to provide the greatest opportunities to achieve sustainability and profitability in dryland agriculture and will continue to be the focus of the ARS research program The ARS is pleased to join the Crop Science Society of America and international center for Agriculture Research in Dry Areas ICARDA in sponsoring a symposium Challenges and strategies for Dryland Agriculture at the Trisocieties Annual Meeting in November 2002 at Indianapolis IN This special publication contains an impressive series of papers by international group of experts on dryland agricultural production conservation and policy The principles philosophies and technologies presented in this publication have the potential to contribute to improve food security and livelihoods for the people in dryland regions of the world The Role of Legumes in the Farming Systems of the Mediterranean Areas A.E. Osman, M.M. Ibrahim, M.A. Jones, 2012-12-06 Legumes are an important source of protein for humans and animals They provide nutritionally rich crop residues for animal feed and play a key role in maintaining the productivity of soils particularly through biological nitrogen fixation They are therefore of immense value in rainfed farming systems The International Center for Agricultural Research in the Dry Areas ICARDA has a responsibility for research on food pasture and forage legumes The Center also has the broad objective of improving livestock production in rainfed farming systems Although food legumes have been known and grown by farmers in the WANA region for a long time their productivity has remained low and variable Forage legumes on the other hand are not so well known by farmers of the region and their role in the farming systems is not so well understood Thus we need to develop the concept of using forage legumes as crops and to fit them into cropping systems In its efforts to increase the productivity of food legumes and develop the legume based crop livestock systems ICARDA has established a network of scientists in the different National Agricultural Research Systems in the region To further strengthen this network ICARDA convened a workshop on The Role of Legumes in the Farming Systems of Mediterranean Areas in Tunis Tunisia 20-24 June 1988 This workshop was co sponsored by UNDP who also contributed funds for this publication Expanding the Production and Use of Cool Season Food Legumes Fred J. Muehlbauer, W.J. Kaiser, 2012-12-06 The goal of the Second International Food Legume Research Conference held in Cairo

Egypt was to build on the success of the first conference held nearly 6 years earlier at Spokane Washington USA It was at that first conference where the decision was made to hold the second Conference in Egypt and so near the ancestral home of these food legume crops It has been a long held view that the cool season food legumes had their origin in the Mediterranean basin and the Near east arc and there is little doubt that food legumes were a staple food of the ancient Egyptian civilization The cool season food legumes have the reputation for producing at least some yield under adverse conditions of poor fertility and limited moisture i e in circumstances where other crops are likely to fail completely Yields of cool season food legumes are particularly poor in those regions where they are most important to local populations The influx of more profitable crops such as wheat maize and soybeans have gradually relegated the food legumes to marginal areas with poor fertility and limited water which exposes them to even greater degrees of stress In the past two decades production of food legumes has declined in most of the developing countries while at the same time it has expanded greatly in Canada Australia and most notably in Turkey

The Search for Wild Relatives of Cool Season Legumes Gideon Ladizinsky, Shahal Abbo, 2015-04-07 The study of origin and domestication of legumes described in this book emerged when it became apparent that while this kind of information is adequate for cereals the pulses lagged behind At the end of the 1960s the senior author initiated a study on the chickpea s wild relatives followed by similar attempts for broad bean fenugreek common vetch bitter vetch and lentil The junior author joined the project in the late 1980s with a study of the genetics of interspecific hybrid embryo abortion in lentil and later has extensively investigated chickpea domestication and wild peas While this book mainly describes our research findings pertinent results obtained by others are also discussed and evaluated Studying the wild relatives of legumes included evaluation of their taxonomic status their morphological variation ecological requirements exploration of their distribution and seed collection in their natural habitats Seeds were examined for their protein profile as preliminary hints of their affinity to the cultigens and plants grown from these seeds were used for establishing their karyotype producing intra and interspecific hybrids and analyses of their chromosome pairing at meiosis and fertility The aim of these investigations was the identification of the potential wild gene pool of the domesticated forms Assessment of genetic variation among accessions particularly in the genus Lens was made by isozymes and chloroplast DNA studies The main findings include the discovery of the chickpea wild progenitor studies of lentil in three crossability groups wild peas proceeded in two lines of study faba bean and fenugreek and their wild progenitors have not yet been identified common vetch and its related form were treated here as an aggregate A sativa we found gene flow between members of different karyotypes is possible bitter vetch and its relation to the domesticated form were established by breeding experiments
