Pant,Y. Joshi,2015-11-05 China s exponential rise and America s relative decline have led to a transition of power in contemporary Asia The US pivot towards Asia is the most evident manifestation of such a transition and Indian foreign policy shows signs of a hedging strategy with attempts to strengthen ties with both China and the US U.S. Policy and the Security of Asia Fred Greene,1968 The author believes that because deep rooted distrust is endemic among neighboring Asian states the creation of a realistic balance of power is essential for regional American security interests He suggests an ideal U S policy in which Japan would assume a greater share of the Asian defense burden and the U S would strive for a lessening of Indian Pakistani hostilities The U S would counter the threat of a nuclear armed China by strengthening its ties with the independent nations of Asia The author stresses that the defense of Taiwan and America s direct aid to South Vietnam are critical as symbols of U S determination to contain China geopolitically

US Foreign Policy in a Challenging World Marco Clementi,Matteo Dian,Barbara Pisciotto,2017-07-18 This book examines how the US is dealing with the challenge of reconciling its global interests with regional dynamics and how it is able to produce and sustain order at the system level and within regional subsystems The book comprises four parts the first of which addresses global issues such as nonproliferation trade and freedom of the seas US policies in these areas are carefully analyzed considering whether and how they have been differently implemented at the regional level The remaining parts of the book focus on the US posture toward specific regions Europe the Middle East and East Asia The policies adopted by the US to confront the most relevant challenges in each region are identified and the ways in which policies in a specific region influence or are influenced by challenges in another region are explored The book is a rich source of knowledge on the nature of the balance that the US has pursued between global and regional interests It will be of much interest to scholars to practitioners to postgraduate PhD students of international relations theory and American foreign policy and to all with an interest in the ability of the US to produce international order

United States Engagement in the Asia Pacific: Perspectives from Asia Yoichiro Sato,See Seng Tan,2015-07-15 This study brings together Asian and Asia based experts of international relations and U S foreign policy to present diverse Asian views about preferred modes of U S engagement in the region and compare their views with U S interests in the region a prerequisite exercise to truly multilateral regional security governance With the rise of Chinese power in absolute and relative terms over the next decades as a key driving factor of the international relations in the Asia Pacific the United States has announced its Rebalance to Asia previously referred as Pivot to Asia strategy Asian responses perceptions and even interpretations of the U S strategy have been diverse Misconceptions of the U S strategy can be attributed to the built in contradictions among its objectives deliberate ambiguities left by the architects of the strategy mismatch between the stated strategy and actual policy implementations during the last three years and subjective reading by the Asian countries through the lens of their own interests This book will illuminate the diversity of Asian responses and perceptions and analyze the underlying reasons of the diversity The overarching framework of analysis for this book is the very dilemma of alliances abandonment and entrapment which hedging aims at evading

Abandonment fear is primarily of the junior partner of an alliance that its senior partner may not come to its aid in crisis. Meanwhile entrapment fear works both ways. The United States may drag its allies into its conflict against a third party but U.S. allies may also drag the United States into their regional conflicts in which the United States has no direct or significant stake. The Asian choices of their strategic responses to the U.S. Rebalancing will be described and analyzed through the lens of the perceived balance between the abandonment and entrapment fears as well as other historical and domestic factors unique to each Asian country. The reading of the U.S. strategy by Asian countries is a subjective matter and their interests likely influence their analysis and consequently strategies. It is not the aim of this volume to establish well defined cause and effect chain between the U.S. strategy and Asian strategies but thick descriptions have enabled some chapter authors to identify reciprocal relations between the two. While China's growth is the most important driver of the changing strategic landscape in the Asia Pacific and the new U.S. strategy the new U.S. strategy inevitably influence the Chinese strategy which in turn triggers a chain reaction of strategic revisions in Asian countries. This book is essential reading for scholars in Asian politics, U.S. foreign policy, international relations as well as for policy makers.

The Regional Imperative Lloyd Irving Rudolph, 1980 Monthly Catalogue, United States Public Documents, 1983 U.S. Foreign Policy And Asian-Pacific Security William T Tow, 2019-06-04

The Reagan administration has indicated clearly that the United States will reassert its strategic presence in Asia and the Pacific at levels not equalled since the close of the Vietnam conflict. The implications of this policy bear careful examination in light of the growing divergence between U.S. security perceptions and those of our European and Asian partners.
