Asian Americans And Politics Perspectives Experiences Prospects Paperback:

Asian Americans and Politics Gordon H. Chang, 2001 Asian Americans have quite recently emerged as an increasingly important force in American politics In 1996 more than 300 Asian and Pacific Americans were elected to federal state and local offices today more than 2 000 hold appointive positions in government Asian American voices have been prominent in policy debates over such matters as education race relations and immigration reform On a more discordant note a national controversy with racial overtones erupted in 1996 97 over alleged illegal Asian and Asian American campaign contributions and illicit foreign influences on American politics and in 1999 another controversy arose over allegations that a Chinese American physicist had passed nuclear secrets to the Chinese government Yet little scholarly attention has been devoted to understanding the engagement of Asian Americans with American politics This volume of fifteen essays is the first to take a broad ranging look at the phenomenon Its contributors are drawn from a variety of disciplines history political science sociology and urban studies and from the practical political realm They discuss such topics as the historical relationship of Asians to American politics the position of Asian Americans in America's legal and racial landscape recent Asian American voting behavior and political opinion politics and the evolving demographics of the Asian American population current national controversies involving Asian Americans conclusions drawn from regional and local case studies and the future of Asian Americans in American politics

Asian Americans and Politics Gordon H. Chang, 2001 This volume is the first to take a broad ranging look at the engagement of Asian Americans with American politics Its contributors come from a variety of disciplines history political science sociology and urban studies and from the practical political realm The Oxford Handbook of Asian American History David Yoo, Eiichiro Azuma, 2016 The Oxford Handbook of Asian American History brings together 27 essays that engage the state of the field with historiographically informed but creative approaches to this diverse and vibrant area The chapters trace Asian American history from the beginning of the migration flows toward the Pacific Islands and the American continent to Japanese American incarceration and Asian American participation in World War II from the experience of exclusion violence and racism to the social and political activism of the late twentieth century The authors explore many of the key aspects of the Asian American experience including politics economy intellectual life the arts education religion labor gender family urban development and legal history

Asian American Politics Andrew Aoki, Okiyoshi Takeda, 2008 An introduction to the study of Asian American participation in US politics It covers historical and cultural context political behaviour and attitudes interest groups and parties elected officials and public policies that have an important impact on Asian Americans

The ^ASocial Roots of Asian American Partisanship Tanika Raychaudhuri, 2025-10-13 This book explores how Asian Americans learn about American politics and develop partisan attitudes Asian Americans are the fastest growing immigrant group in the US and are thus the focus of intense interest by both major parties To explain the historical Asian American support for the Democratic Party and recent shifts in that trend

Tanika Raychaudhuri proposes a theory of social transmission. She argues that Asian Americans primarily learn about American politics from peers in local contexts so many vote for Democrats because they settle in liberal metropolitan areas where they interact with liberal peer groups. Grounded in a range of quantitative and qualitative evidence including in depth interviews, national surveys of Asian Americans and original survey experiments, Raychaudhuri's analysis presents important implications for understanding political behavior in immigrant communities and the future of American electoral politics.

Asian America Rising Diane Wong, Mark Tseng-Putterman, 2025-09-16. A collection of movement flashpoints and insurgent visions for Asian American activism. In the late 1960s Asian American political activism emerged to unite disparate Asian diasporic communities living in the United States behind a radical political identity shaped by the Black Power and anti-imperialist movements of their times. Today Asian Americans are more diverse and at times more politically divided than ever before. In media and electoral politics Asian Americans are celebrated as the fastest growing racial demographic in the United States and claimed as evidence of racial progress. Yet the rise of Asian America rarely centers the coordinated forms of grassroots political organizing that Asian Americans have used to shape their place in society. In Asian America Rising Diane Wong and Mark Tseng-Putterman bring together an interdisciplinary group of established and emerging scholars of Asian American activism and politics, community organizers, artists, archivists, and others to highlight the diversity of twenty-first century Asian American political movements across a number of critical areas. Based on deep collaborations between scholars and frontline organizers, contributors like Diane Fujino, Vichet Chhuon, Lakshmi Sridaran, and Kim Compoc examine different facets of the Asian American political experience, including the impact of immigrant detention and deportation, the emergence of conservative Chinese American opposition to affirmative action in higher education, abolitionist perspectives on the Stop Asian Hate movement, and transnational resistance to U.S. economic and military dominance in Hawaii, the Philippines, and Okinawa. Ultimately Wong and Tseng-Putterman show important shifts and emergent directions for Asian American politics in the twenty-first century. Focusing on grassroots mobilization and bold interventions beyond the formal political sphere, they shine a light on the diversity and power of Asian American political activism, cultural work, community building, mutual aid, and multiracial issue-based organizing.

Nowhere to Run Christian Dyogi Phillips, 2021. Why has the underrepresentation of women and racial minorities in elected office proved so persistent? Many researchers have asserted that the main shortfall happens at the candidacy stage: women and people of color are competitive candidates but too few throw their hat into the ring. However, these studies are animated by two assumptions that tend to speak past each other. On the one hand, gender and politics scholars often suggest that women lack sufficient ambition to run for office relative to men. On the other hand, race and politics scholars have suggested that districts with majority white populations do not provide adequate resources or opportunities for minority candidates to succeed. These approaches tend to treat women and racial minorities as parallel social groups and fail to account for the ways in which race and gender simultaneously shape candidacy.

Nowhere to Run introduces the intersectional model of electoral opportunity which argues that descriptive representation in elections is shaped by intersecting processes related to race and gender Across states realistic opportunities for potential candidates of color to get on state legislative ballots are sharply circumscribed by the distribution of white majority populations in most districts and within the districts that are most widely viewed as winnable seats majority minority districts the perceived scarcity of viable electoral opportunities exacerbates factors that tend to push women of color farther from the candidate pipeline These overlapping constraints result in an electoral landscape where women of color face constraints on electoral opportunity that are intersecting and multilayered Drawing on an original dataset encompassing nearly every state legislative general election from 1996 2015 as well as interviews and surveys with candidates donors and other political elites from 42 states Nowhere to Run tests this theory with a first of its kind study of Asian American and Latina o candidacies and the first simultaneous look at the relationship between changing populations and descriptive representation for African American Asian American Latina o and white women and men The book sheds new light on how multiple dimensions of identity simultaneously shape pathways to candidacy and representation for all groups seeking a seat at the table in American politics The Colonized Apostle Christopher D. Stanley, Race 2008 Myra Mendible, 2010-05 Race 2008 Critical Reflections on an Historic Campaign brings together a diverse group of scholars and activists to examine the gendered politics images rhetorical practices and racial ethnic conflicts that served as a backdrop to this momentous election It features perspectives marginalized or ignored by mainstream media and political pundits thus providing alternative critical insights on the social dynamics fueling campaign rhetoric grassroots activism and intergroup conflicts in 2008 and beyond

This career spanning anthology brings together significant essays developing conversations across his broad ranging research interests and personal history and engaging a range of topics from diplomatic history and Asian American history to art history The book begins with a preface that reflects on the rise of Asian American studies as a field and the author's own scholarly trajectory Each essay is accompanied by new headnotes that provide context Essays examine the many ways that race especially regarding Asian Americans connects important historical episodes and social issues Themes of geopolitical conflict race and transnational methods link writing produced over several decades illustrating the arc of an intellectual career and the development of the field of Asian American studies Ultimately this book highlights Chang's abiding interest in providing historical context for issues facing Asian Americans particularly during a time of rising geopolitical tensions and anti Asian violence
