Bertolt Brecht's Dramatic Theory John J. White, 2004

In concert with his work as a politically charged playwright and dramaturge, Bertolt Brecht concerned himself extensively with the theory of drama. He was convinced that the Aristotelian ideal of audience catharsis through identification with a hero and the resultant experience of terror and pity worked against his goal of bettering society. He did not want his audiences to feel but to think, and his main theoretical thrusts, Verfremdungseffekte (de-familiarization effects) and epic theater, among others, were conceived in pursuit of this goal. This is the first detailed study in English of Brecht's writings on the theater, to take account of works first made available in the recent German edition of his collected works. It offers in-depth analyses of Brecht's canonical essays on the theater from 1930 to the late 1940s and early GDR years. Close readings of the individual essays are supplemented by surveys of the changing connotations within Brecht's dramaturgical oeuvre of key theoretical terms, including epic and anti-Aristotelian theater, de-familiarization, historicization, and dialectical theater. Brecht's distinct contribution to the theorizing of acting and audience response is examined in detail, and each theoretical essay and concept is placed in the context of the aesthetic debates of the time, subjected to a critical assessment, and considered in light of subsequent scholarly thinking. In many cases, the playwright's theoretical discourse is shown to employ methods of epic presentation and techniques of de-familiarization that are corollaries of the dramatic techniques for which his plays are justly famous.

John J. White is Professor of German and Comparative Literature at King's College London.

Bertolt Brecht Journals, 1934-55 Bertolt Brecht, 2016-07-14

Those who dismiss Brecht as a yes-sayer to Stalinism are advised to read these journals and moderate their opinion. Paul Bailey, Weekend Telegraph. Brecht's Work Journals cover the period from 1938 to 1955, the years of exile in Denmark, Sweden, Finland, and America, and his return via Switzerland to East Berlin. His criticisms of the work of other writers and intellectuals are perceptive and polemic, and the accounts of his own writing practice provide insight into the creation of his dramatic works of the period, the development of his political thinking, and his theories about epic theatre. Also integrated into the journals are Brecht's immediate reactions to, and commentary upon, the events of the period, his political exile, his view of the assumption that it is a work of Aristotelian realism Brecht is shown to employ covert alienation devices that are an integral part of his literary campaign against Third Reich Germany This first study in English on the subject of Brecht and fascism offers a corrective to the overconcentration on the play's artistic aspects It considers Brecht's relationship to the Popular Front's campaign against the National Socialist regime Attention is paid to the play's genesis and in the case of The Private Life of the Master Race to the partial shift from the Third Reich of 1933-38 to the war period predicted in the original Furcht und Elend cycle The play's central theme of resistance its propaganda value and its political and artistic reception are addressed within their historical and ideological framework The result is a challenging assessment of the play's strengths and limitations as a response to German totalitarianism John J White is Emeritus Professor of German and Comparative Literature at King's College London and Ann White is Senior Lecturer in German at Royal Holloway University of London
