Arrow Pushing in Inorganic Chemistry Abhik Ghosh, Steffen Berg, 2014-08-18 Involved as it is with 95% of the periodic table inorganic chemistry is one of the foundational subjects of scientific study Inorganic catalysts are used in crucial industrial processes and the field to a significant extent also forms the basis of nanotechnology Unfortunately the subject is not a popular one for undergraduates This book aims to take a step to change this state of affairs by presenting a mechanistic logical introduction to the subject Organic teaching places heavy emphasis on reaction mechanisms arrow pushing and the authors of this book have found that a mechanistic approach works just as well for elementary inorganic chemistry As opposed to listening to formal lectures or learning the material by heart by teaching students to recognize common inorganic species as electrophiles and nucleophiles coupled with organic style arrow pushing this book serves as a gentle and stimulating introduction to inorganic chemistry providing students with the knowledge and opportunity to solve inorganic reaction mechanisms The first book to apply the arrow pushing method to inorganic chemistry teaching With the reaction mechanisms approach arrow pushing students will no longer have to rely on memorization as a device for learning this subject but will instead have a logical foundation for this area of study Teaches students to recognize common inorganic species as electrophiles and nucleophiles coupled with organic style arrow pushing Provides a degree of integration with what students learn in organic chemistry facilitating learning of this subject Serves as an invaluable companion to any introductory inorganic chemistry textbook

Pharmacology of Fluorides Ernst W. Alther, 2013-11-21 One might well ask why another volume dealing with biological aspects of compounds of fluorine should be offered to the scientific community already burdened with a literature too massive to be comfortably ingested Prior to World War II this question simply did not arise there was not sufficient interest or literature in the field to warrant anything beyond the classical monograph published by KAJ RoHOLM in 1937 RoHOLM's work was directed chiefly toward a better understanding of the effects of fluorides on the general health of workers in the cryolite industry However with the demonstration that water borne fluoride was a causative agent of both mottled enamel and increased resistance to dental caries the ground work was laid in the 1930 s and early 1940 s for a greatly increased interest in the biological effects of fluorides in human beings During this time and earlier for that matter work also had been going steadily ahead in the less spectacular area of effects produced in poultry and livestock when fluorine containing rock phosphate was incorporated in the ration and when pasture land was contaminated with fluorides released during the large scale conversion of rock phosphate to fertilizer and phosphoric acid These latter aspects of the problem had led to the development of a respectable literature in plant physiology dealing with the effects of fluoride on vegetation
