Investigating Archaeological Cultures Benjamin W. Roberts, Marc Vander Linden, 2011-06-04 Defining culture is an important step in undertaking archaeological research Any thorough study of a particular culture first has to determine what that culture contains what particular time period geographic region and group of people make up that culture The study of archaeology has many accepted definitions of particular cultures but recently these accepted definitions have come into question As archaeologists struggle to define cultures they also seek to define the components of culture This volume brings together 21 international case studies to explore the meaning of culture for regions around the globe and periods from the Paleolithic to the Bronze Age and beyond Taking lessons and overarching themes from these studies the contributors draw important conclusions about cultural transmission technology development and cultural development The result is a comprehensive model for approaching the study of culture broken down into regions Russia Continental Europe North America Britain and Africa materials Lithics Ceramics Metals and time periods This work will be valuable to all archaeologists and cultural anthropologists particularly those studying material culture

Mapping Our Ancestors Carl P. Lipo, 2017 Much of what we are comes from our ancestors

Through cultural and biological inheritance mechanisms our genetic composition instructions for constructing artifacts the structure and content of languages and rules for behavior are passed from parents to children and from individual to individual Mapping Our Ancestors demonstrates how various genealogical or phylogenetic methods can be used both to answer questions about human history and to build evolutionary explanations for the shape of history Anthropologists are increasingly turning to quantitative phylogenetic methods These methods depend on the transmission of information regardless of mode and as such are applicable to many anthropological questions In this way phylogenetic approaches have the potential for building bridges among the various subdisciplines of anthropology an exciting prospect indeed The structure of Mapping Our Ancestors reflects the editors goal of developing a common understanding of the methods and conditions under which ancestral relations can be derived in a range of data classes of interest to anthropologists Specifically this volume explores the degree to which patterns of ancestry can be determined from artifactual genetic linguistic and behavioral data and how processes such as selection transmission and geography impact the results of phylogenetic analyses Mapping Our Ancestors provides a solid demonstration of the potential of phylogenetic methods for studying the evolutionary history of human populations using a variety of data sources and thus helps explain how cultural material language and biology came to be as they are Carl P Lipo is assistant professor of anthropology at California State University in Long Beach Michael O Brien is professor of anthropology and director of the Museum of Anthropology at the University of Missouri Mark Collard is assistant professor of anthropology at the University of British Columbia Stephen J Shennan is a professor and director of the Institute of Archaeology at the University College London Niles Eldredge is a curator in the department of invertebrates at the American Museum of Natural History and adjunct professor at the City University of New York The Comparative Approach in Evolutionary Anthropology and Biology Charles L. Convergent Evolution in Stone-Tool Technology Michael J. O'Brien, Briggs Buchanan, Metin I. Eren, 2024-05-21 Scholars from a variety of disciplines consider cases of convergence in lithic technology when functional or developmental constraints result in similar forms in independent lineages Hominins began using stone tools at least 2.6 million years ago perhaps even 3.4 million years ago Given the nearly ubiquitous use of stone tools by humans and their ancestors the study of lithic technology offers an important line of inquiry into questions of evolution and behavior This book examines convergence in stone tool making cases in which functional or developmental constraints result in similar forms in independent lineages Identifying examples of convergence and distinguishing convergence from divergence refutes hypotheses that suggest physical or cultural connection between far flung prehistoric toolmakers Employing phylogenetic analysis and stone tool replication the contributors show that similarity of tools can be caused by such common constraints as the fracture properties of stone or adaptive challenges rather than such unlikely phenomena as migration of toolmakers over an Arctic ice shelf Contributors R Alexander Bentley Briggs Buchanan Marcelo Cardillo Mathieu Charbonneau Judith Charlin Chris Clarkson Loren G Davis Metin I Eren Peter Hiscock Thomas A Jennings Steven L Kuhn Daniel E Lieberman George R McGhee Alex Mackay Michael J O'Brien Charlotte D Pevny Ceri Shipton Ashley M Smallwood Heather Smith Jayne Wilkins Samuel C Willis Nicolas Zayns

Understanding Cultural Transmission in Anthropology Roy Ellen, Stephen J. Lycett, Sarah E. Johns, 2013-08-01 The concept of cultural transmission is central to much contemporary anthropological theory since successful human reproduction through social systems is essential for effective survival and for enhancing the adaptiveness of individual humans and local populations Yet what is understood by the phrase and how it might best be studied is highly contested This book brings together contributions that reflect the current diversity of approaches from the fields of biology primatology palaeoanthropology psychology social anthropology ethnobiology and archaeology to examine social and cultural transmission from a range of perspectives and at different scales of generalization. The comprehensive introduction explores some of the problems and connections. Overall, the book provides a timely synthesis of current accounts of cultural transmission in relation to cognitive process, practical action, and local socio-ecological context, while linking these with explanations of longer-term evolutionary trajectories.
