

If you're wondering exactly what clairvoyant power are, they are basically a way to see more than most people do. Everyone has five senses, but a clairvoyant has six senses, allowing them to use extra sensory perception to see things which are not present in the natural world. This ability permits them to make predictions and see the past through an ability which is regarded as retro-cognition.

M. M. Moncrieff, Henry Habberley Price, 1951 Direct Realism Moltke S. Gram, 1983-09-30 a vigorous and challenging defence of direct realism in which one gets not only a clear overview of what precisely the problems are but also a forceful and often insightful attempt to solve them the book makes a highly readable and stimulating contribution to recent literature in the philosophy of perception Critical Philosophy 2 1 1985 Mindsight Kenneth Ring, Sharon Cooper, 2008-03 This book investigates the astonishing claim that blind persons including those blind from birth can actually see during near death or out of body episodes The authors present their findings in scrupulous detail investigating case histories of blind persons who have actually reported visual experiences under these conditions There is fascinating evidence that the blind do see in these moments but it is not sight as we think of it Ring and Cooper suggest a kind of transcendental awareness they refer to as Mindsight It involves seeing in detail sometimes from all angles at once with everything in focus and a sense of knowing the subject not just visually but with multisensory knowledge Human beings may be more talented than we think gifted with amazing abilities of perception This book is an opportunity to assess the evidence for yourself Direct Realism D. Gram, 2012-12-06 or their surfaces can be translated without remainder into descriptions of objects that are neither material objects or surfaces of any material object All of these claims have historically conspired to discredit Direct Realism But Direct Realism can accommodate all of the premises of the three arguments without admitting any of their conclusions Inferential perceptual knowledge assumes a kind of knowledge that is not inferential Without this assumption we are given a vicious infinite regress But this is compatible with the fact that any case of non inferential knowledge has a material object as its object The fact of infallible perceptual awareness fails to discredit Direct Realism for similar reasons Infallibility is a characteristic not of the objects which we perceive but rather of the acts by which we perceive them And this permits an object of such awareness to be either material or something other than material It does not follow from the fact of infallibility that the objects of awareness must be other than material objects And finally the fact of translatability shows at most that we either can or must simultaneously perceive material objects and entities which are not material objects It does not show that the perception of the one is the same as the perception of the other The entire argument rests as we shall learn on an illicit assimilation of the notions of sameness and equivalence Theories of Perception in Medieval and Early Modern Philosophy Simo Knuuttila, Pekka Kärkkäinen, 2008-03-27 Sense perception is one of the classical themes in philosophy. Although perhaps not among the most exciting topics, it is traditionally considered a necessary preamble to many of these, such as the mind-body relationship, consciousness, knowledge, and scepticism. This introductory role is not the only reason for the philosophical interest in perception. It is also a phenomenon which raises important questions about what is perceived, how a perceptual experience is caused, what the content of perception is, whether this content is conceptual, how perception is related to epistemic attitudes, and so on. While philosophical psychology is the main area in which perception is dealt with in contemporary philosophy, it is also discussed in the theory of knowledge, cognitive science, philosophical aesthetics, and metaphysics. In recent years, the rich tradition of various philosophical theories of perception has been increasingly studied by scholars of the history of philosophy of mind. It may be added that there is, of course, a large number of scientific studies of perception in psychology, physiology, and contemporary neuroscience.
