

Clancy of the Overflow

A. B. ("Banjo") Paterson

I had written him a letter which I read, for want of better knowledge, sent to where I met him down the Lockien, years ago. He was shearing when I knew him, so I sent the letter to him, just "on spec", addressed as follows, "Clancy, of The Overflow".

And an answer came directed in a writing unexpected, (And I think the same was written with a thumb-nail dipped in tar) Toss his shearing mate who wrote it, and verbatim I will quote it: "Clancy's gone to Queensland droving, and we don't know where he got."

In my wild erratic fancy visions come to me of Clancy Gone a-droving "down the Cooper" where the Western drovers go; As the stock are slowly stringing, Clancy rides behind them singing, For the drover's life has pleasures that the town-folk never know.

And the bush-buck brands to meet him, and their kindly voices greet him in the murmur of the breezes and the cluck on its bars, And he sees the vision splendid of the sunlit plains extended, And at night the wild vast glory of the overlooming stars.

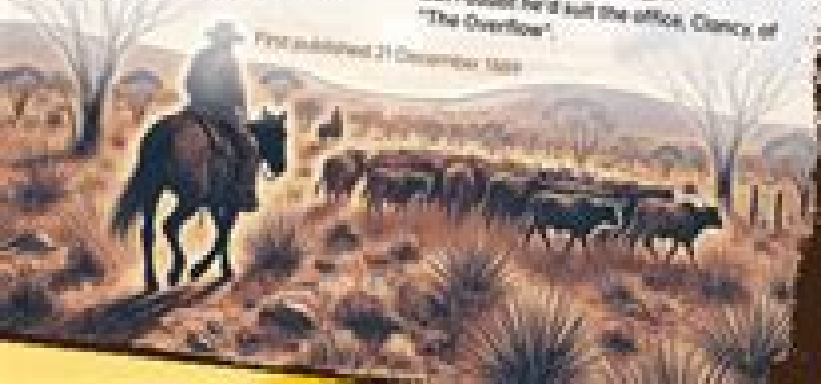

I am sitting in my dingy little office, where a slinky Ray of sunlight struggles feebly down between the houses tall, And the foetid air and grime of the dirty city Through the open window floating spreads its foulness over all.

And in place of lowing cattle, I can hear the fandish rattle Of the tramways and the buses making hurry down the street, And the language unwhiting of the gutter children fighting, Comes fitfully and faintly through the ceaseless tramp of feet.

And the hurrying people daunt me, and their pallid faces haunt me As they shoulder one another in their rush and nervous haste, With their eager eyes and greedy and their stunted forms and weeds, For town-folk have no time to grow, they have no time to waste.

And I somehow rather fancy that I'd like to change with Clancy, Like to take a turn at droving where the seasons come and go, While he faced the round eternal of the cash-book and the journal - But I doubt he'd suit the office, Clancy, of "The Overflow".
