DelCampo, Robert Louis DelCampo, 2003-10 The sixth edition is designed to be used for courses in child development human development or parenting Each part of the book deals with one of the four developmental phases of childhood infancy early childhood middle childhood adolescence Encyclopedia of Adolescence Roger J.R.

Levesque, 2014-07-08 The Encyclopedia of Adolescence breaks new ground as an important central resource for the study of adolescence Comprehensive in breath and textbook in depth the Encyclopedia of Adolescence with entries presented in easy to access A to Z format serves as a reference repository of knowledge in the field as well as a frequently updated conduit of new knowledge long before such information trickles down from research to standard textbooks By making full use of Springer s print and online flexibility the Encyclopedia is at the forefront of efforts to advance the field by pushing and creating new boundaries and areas of study that further our understanding of adolescents and their place in society

Substantively the Encyclopedia draws from four major areas of research relating to adolescence. The first broad area includes research relating to Self Identity and Development in Adolescence. This area covers research relating to identity from early adolescence through emerging adulthood, basic aspects of development e.g. biological, cognitive, social and foundational developmental theories. In addition, this area focuses on various types of identity: gender, sexual, civic, moral, political, racial, spiritual, religious and so forth. The second broad area centers on Adolescents Social and Personal Relationships. This area of research examines the nature and influence of a variety of important relationships including family, peer, friends, sexual and romantic as well as significant nonparental adults. The third area examines Adolescents in Social Institutions. This area of research centers on the influence and nature of important institutions that serve as the socializing contexts for adolescents. These major institutions include schools, religious groups, justice systems, medical fields, cultural contexts, media, legal systems, economic structures and youth organizations. Adolescent Mental Health constitutes the last major area of research. This broad area of research focuses on the wide variety of human thoughts, actions and behaviors relating to mental health from psychopathology to thriving. Major topic examples include deviance, violence, crime, pathology, DSM, normalcy, risk, victimization, disabilities, flow and positive youth development.

Television and Child Development Judith Van Evra, 2004-07-21. Television continues to play a major role in the lives of most children and adolescents but current research also reflects the explosive growth in new technologies and their widespread use by young people. Integrating information from communication literature as well as from child development and other psychological domains, author Judith Van Evra presents a summary and synthesis of what is currently known about the media's impact on children's physical, cognitive, social and emotional development to help discern the complex and significant interplay between other forces in a child's life and the use of various media. This third edition contains updated and expanded coverage of research findings and a review of changing trends in media use including computers, the Internet, books and magazines, music, videos and video games as well as television. New chapters focus on basic research designs and methodologies, cultural diversity, health related matters and lifestyle choices, media's impact on various social/emotional aspects of a child's development, the use of technology for information and for entertainment and intervention possibilities, parent strategies and education. An overall conclusions section at the end of the book provides a cogent summary of findings to date and stimulates discussion of questions and ideas for future research. Television and Child Development explores how and to what extent television and other media actually affect children and what role other variables may play in mediating their impact so that we can maximize technology's potential for enriching children's cognitive, social and emotional development while at the same time minimizing any negative influence. This text is appropriate for researchers, teachers and students in communications, developmental and social psychology and education as well as in areas of advertising, leisure studies, family studies and health promotion.
