Translation and Creation David E. Pollard, 1998 In the late Qing period from the Opium War to the 1911 revolution China absorbed the initial impact of Western arms manufactures science and culture in that order This volume of essays deals with the reception of Western literature on the evidence of translations made Having to overcome Chinese assumptions of cultural superiority the perception that the West had a literature worth notice grew only gradually It was not until the very end of the 19th century that a translation of a Western novel La dame aux camelias achieved popular acclaim But this opened the floodgates in the first decade of the 20th century more translated fiction was published than original fiction The core essays in this collection deal with aspects of this influx according to division of territory Some take key works e g Stowe s Uncle Tom s Cabin Byron s The Isles of Greece some sample genres science fiction detective fiction fables political novels the common attention being to the adjustments made by translators to suit the prevailing aesthetic cultural and social norms and or the current needs and preoccupations of the receiving public A broad overview of translation activities is given in the introduction To present the subject in its true guise that of a major cultural shift supporting papers are included to fill in the background and to describe some of the effects of this foreign invasion on native literature A rounded picture emerges that will be intelligible to readers who have no specialized knowledge of China

Fin-de-Siècle Splendor Dewei Wang, 1997 The reigning view of literary historians has been that the May Fourth movement of 1919 marks the division between the traditional and the modern in

Chinese literature This book argues that signs of reform and innovation can be discerned long before May Fourth and that as China entered the arena of modern international history in the late Qing it was already developing its own complex matrix of incipient modernities It demonstrates that late Qing fiction nurtured a creative innovative poetics one that was spurned by the reformers of the May Fourth generation in favor of Western style realism The author recognizes that a full account of modern Chinese fiction needs to ask why so many genres styles themes and figures found in late imperial fiction were repressed by modern Chinese literary discourse He focuses on four genres of late Qing fiction that have been either rudely dismissed in pejorative terms or simply ignored depravity romances court case and chivalric cycles grotesque exposés and scientific fantasies The author shows that in spite of the realist orthodoxy that has dominated Chinese literature since the May Fourth movement these unwelcome genres have continually found their way back into mainstream discourse their influence being increasingly evident in recent decades This first comprehensive study of late Qing fiction discusses more than sixty works at least half of which have rarely or never been dealt with by Western or Chinese scholars Richly informed by contemporary literary theory this book constitutes a polemical rethinking of the nature of Chinese literary and cultural modernity
