Abadie, 2004 A critical exploration of the effects and influence of America s wars upon the works of the Nobel Prize laureate Resisting History Barbara Ladd, 2007-06-01 In a major reinterpretation Resisting History reveals that women as subjects of writing and as writing subjects themselves played a far more important role in shaping the landscape of modernism than has been previously acknowledged Here Barbara Ladd offers powerful new readings of three southern writers who reimagined authorship between World War I and the mid 1950s Ladd argues that the idea of a new woman released from some of the traditional constraints of family and community more mobile and participating in new contractual forms of relationality precipitated a highly productive authorial crisis of gender in William Faulkner As new women themselves Zora Neale Hurston and Eudora Welty explored the territory of the authorial sublime and claimed for themselves and other women new forms of cultural agency Together these writers expose a territory of female suffering and aspiration that has been largely ignored in literary histories In opposition to the belief that women s lives and dreams are bound up in ideas of community and pre contractual forms of relationality Ladd demonstrates that all three writers Faulkner in As I Lay Dying Welty in selected short stories and in The Golden Apples and Hurston in Tell My Horse place women in territories where community is threatened or nonexistent and new opportunities for self definition can be seized And in A Fable Faulkner undertakes a related project in his exploration of gender and history in an era of world war focusing on men mourning and resistance and on the insurgences of the masses the feminized others of history in order to rethink authorship and resistance for a totalitarian age Filled with insights and written with obvious passion for the subject Resisting History challenges received ideas about history as a coherent narrative and about the development of U S modernism and points the way to new histories of literary and cultural modernisms in which the work of women shares center stage with the work of men Writing after War John

Limon,1994-07-07 In Writing After War John Limon develops a theory of the relationship of war in general to literature in general in order to make sense of American literary history in particular Applying the work of war theorists Carl von Clausewitz and Elaine Scarry John Limon argues that The Iliad inaugurates Western literature on the failure of war to be as beautiful as it is necessary War's failure is literature's justification American literary history is demarcated by wars as if literary epochs like the history of literature itself required bloodshed to commence But in chapters on periods of literary history from realism generally taken to be a product of the Civil War through modernism usually assumed to be a prediction or result of the Great War up to postmodernism which followed World War II and spanned Vietnam Limon argues that despite the looming presence of war in American history the techniques that define these periods are essentially ways of not writing war From James and Twain through Fitzgerald Faulkner and even Hemingway to Pynchon our national literary history is not hopelessly masculinist Limon argues Instead it arrives naturally at Bobbie Ann Mason and Maxine Hong Kingston Kingston brings the discussion full circle The Woman Warrior like The Iliad appears to condemn the fall from duel to war that is literature's endless opening

William Faulkner Daniel Joseph Singal,2000-11-09 Amid all that has been published about William Faulkner one subject the nature of his thought remains largely unexplored But as Daniel Singal's new intellectual biography reveals we can learn much about Faulkner's art by relating it to the cultural and intellectual discourse of his era and much about that era by coming to terms with his art Through detailed analyses of individual texts from the earliest poetry through Go Down Moses Singal traces Faulkner's attempt to liberate himself from the repressive Victorian culture in which he was raised by embracing the Modernist culture of the artistic avant garde To accommodate the conflicting demands of these two cultures Singal shows Faulkner created a complex and fluid structure of selfhood based on a set of dual identities one that of a Modernist author writing on the most daring and subversive issues of his day and the other that of a southern country gentleman loyal to the conservative mores of his community Indeed it is in the clash between these two selves Singal argues that one finds the key to making sense of Faulkner

Faulkner and Humor Doreen Fowler,1986 While the essays in this volume explore various aspects of Faulkner's rich and inexhaustible comic art they all hold in common one axiom that William Faulkner the recognized genius of tragic art is a master of comic forms as well and further that neither mode tragic or comic is ever very far from the other in Faulkner's world James Cox and William Claxton reassert a familiar but helpful reminder of the outlandish humor in Jason Compson's world The comic world of As I Lay Dying Light in August and Go Down Moses is treated variously as irony of miscommunication as framing device for character portrayal and as comedy of incongruity three qualities that offer new insights about these richly funny works ISBN 0 87805 282 8 pbk 14 95
