Popular Fronts Bill V Mullen, 2024-04-22 The Communist International's Popular Front campaign of the 1930s brought to the fore ideas that resonated in Chicago's African American community. Indeed, the Popular Front not only connected to the black experience of the era but outlasted its Communist Party affiliation to serve as both model and inspiration for a postwar cultural insurrection led by African Americans. With a new preface, Bill V Mullen updates his dynamic reappraisal of a critical moment in American cultural history. Mullen's study includes reassessments of the politics of Richard Wright's critical reputation and a provocative reading of class struggle in Gwendolyn Brooks' A Street in Bronzeville. He also takes an in-depth look at the institutions that comprised Chicago's black popular front: the Chicago Defender, the period's leading black newspaper; Negro Story, the first magazine devoted to publishing short stories by and about African Americans; and the WPA-sponsored South Side Community Art Center. The Writer's Directory, 1998-2000 Miranda H. Levy,1993-09-24 The Culture and Commerce of the Short Story is a cultural and historical account of the birth and development of the American short story from the time of Poe It describes how America through political movements changes in education magazine editorial policy and the work of certain individuals built the short story as an image of itself and continues to use the genre as a locale within the realm of art where American political ideals can be rehearsed debated and turned into literary forms While the focus of this book is cultural individual authors such as Edgar Allan Poe and Edith Wharton are examined as representative of the phenomenon As part of its project this book also contains a history of creative writing and the workshop dating back a century Andrew Levy makes a strong case for the centrality of the short story as a form of art in American life and provides an explanation for the genre s resurgence and ongoing success The Writers Directory ,2013 Index to American Reference Books Annual 1985-1989 ,1989 1970 issued in 2 vols v 1 General reference social sciences history economics business v 2 Fine arts humanities science and engineering Forthcoming Books Rose Arny,1990 Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1993 Clockwork Muse Colin Martindale,1990-11-06 What determines the evolution of styles in poetry painting music and architecture Are there universal laws of art history to which even Shakespeare Beethoven and Picasso were subject In this highly original and provocative book cognitive psychologist Colin Martindale challenges conventional theories that seek to explain changes in the arts as the result of political religious or social forces Social forces do not cause change in art they distort it he writes Martindale argues that it is the pressure for novelty that shapes individual artistic careers and trends whether in literature music or the visual arts Through the use of computer models and experimental simulations Martindale explores the psychological factors involved in producing novel responses and he traces the stylistic changes that derive from this need for novelty Book jacket Towards a 'Natural' Narratology Monika Fludernik,2002-11 In this ground breaking work of synthesis Monika Fludernik combines insights from literary theory and linguistics to provide a challenging new theory of narrative This book is both an historical survey and theoretical study with the author drawing on an enormous range of examples from the earliest oral study to contemporary experimental fiction She uses these examples to prove that recent literature far from heralding the final collapse of narrative represents the epitome of a centuries long developmental process Index to American Reference Books Annual ,1985

Who's who in Writers, Editors & Poets, United States & Canada ,1995 Selected Letters of John Updike John Updike,2025-10-21 The arc of literary giant John Updike s life emerges in these luminous daily letters to family friends editors and lovers a remarkable outpouring over six decades from his earliest consciousness as a writer to his final days As James Schiff writes in the introduction to this volume of the writer who would eventually express himself in written form as copiously and as elegantly as any American writer before him Updike needed to write the way the rest of us need to breathe or eat With his stunning rhetorical gifts enabling him to thrive in both short fiction and the novel criticism as well as poetry Updike was also a consummate letter writer When barely a teenager he began submitting poems and cartoons to national magazines and soliciting famous cartoonists with flattering requests for a drawing His letter writing only increased when he left the family farm in Pennsylvania for Harvard where he composed more than 150 witty substantive letters to his parents The summer after he graduated The New Yorker began accepting his work and his exchanges with editors publishers and writers would stretch into a correspondence that Schiff notes figures not as an adjunct to but rather an integral part of his astonishing literary output The intimacy and lucidity of these letters brings to the fore all manner of subjects and situations notably the ardent feelings for his first love and wife Mary and later the heartbreaking but honestly accounted breakup of their marriage the uncensored passion for other women including his Ipswich neighbor Martha who became his second wife the concern for his children's path to adulthood and the conversations with many literary peers from Joyce Carol Oates to Philip Roth as well as his Knopf and New Yorker editors critics translators and others in the lit business Filled with comic observations opinions and personal news told in the fluid first person voice of the writer himself these missives taken together create a page turning life in letters like no other
