Hand Clap! Sara Bernstein, 1994-10-01 NULL Children's Games in the New Media Age Chris Richards, Andrew Burn, 2016-05-23 The result of a unique research project exploring the relationship between children's vernacular play cultures and their media based play this collection challenges two popular misconceptions about children's play that it is depleted or even dying out and that it is threatened by contemporary media such as television and computer games A key element in the research was the digitization and analysis of Iona and Peter Opie's sound recordings of children's playground and street games from the 1970s and 1980s This framed and enabled the research team's studies both of the Opies' documents of mid twentieth century play culture and through a two year ethnographic study of play and games in two primary school playgrounds contemporary children's play cultures In addition the research included the use of a prototype computer game to capture playground games and the making of a documentary film Drawing on this extraordinary data set the volume poses three questions What do these hitherto unseen sources reveal about the games songs and rhymes the Opies and others collected in the mid twentieth century What has happened to these vernacular forms How are the forms of vernacular play that are transmitted in playgrounds homes and streets transfigured in the new media age In addressing these questions the contributors reflect on the changing face of childhood in the twenty first century in relation to questions of gender and power and with attention to the children's own participation in producing the ethnographic record of their lives Encyclopedia of Play in Today's Society Rodney P. Human-in-the-Loop Robot Control and Learning Luka Peternel, Jan Babič, Erhan Oztop, Tetsunari Inamura, Dingguo Zhang, 2020-01-22 In the past years there has been considerable effort to move robots from industrial environments to our daily lives where they can collaborate and interact with humans to improve our life quality One of the key challenges in this direction is to make a suitable robot control system that can adapt to humans and interactively learn from humans to facilitate the efficient and safe co existence of the two The applications of such robotic systems include service robotics and physical human robot collaboration assistive and rehabilitation robotics semi autonomous cars etc To achieve the goal of integrating robotic systems into these applications several important research directions must be explored One such direction is the study of skill transfer where a human operator's skilled executions are used to obtain an autonomous controller Another important direction is shared control where a robotic controller and humans control the same body tool mechanism car etc Shared control in turn invokes very rich research questions such as co adaptation between the human and the robot where the two agents can benefit from each other's skills or must adapt to each other's behavior to achieve effective cooperative task executions The aim of this Research Topic is to help bridge the gap between the state of the art and above mentioned goals through novel multidisciplinary approaches in human in the loop robot control and learning

Changing Play: Play, Media and Commercial Culture from the 1950s to the Present Day Jackie Marsh, Julia Bishop, 2013-10-16 This book explores changes in the nature of the relationship between play media and commercial culture through a comparison of play in the 1950s 60s and the present day examining the continuities and discontinuities in play over time There are many aspects of play which remain the same today as they were sixty years ago which relate to the purposes of play the way in which children weave in material from a range of sources in their play including media and how they play with each other Differences in play between now and the mid twentieth century are due to the very different social and cultural worlds children now inhabit in which technology is central to many play activities Challenging deficit notions of play in contemporary society and providing evidence to contest the recurrent myth of the disappearance of play the book Provides an historical account of changes in the relationship between play media and commercial culture over the past sixty years Offers fascinating illuminating and direct accounts of children playing in the 1950s 60s and today Engages with the work of the renowned folklorists Iona and Peter Opie and reviews their legacy Addresses key issues such as outdoor play technology and play and gender and play Changing Play recovers the groundbreaking work of Iona and Peter Opie making it relevant and consequential for the contemporary study of children play and media cultures Marsh and Bishop convincingly demonstrate how children's play practices when approached on their own terms exhibit a persistent dynamism that cannot and should not be reduced to simple exclamations of panic or celebration Daniel Thomas Cook Department of Childhood Studies Rutgers University USA Using the work of Iona and Peter Opie as a benchmark Changing Play tracks the continuities in children's play and the changes that have taken place over the past half century The research juxtaposes the memories of children who grew up in the 1950s and 1960s with observations of and conversations with today's children in Sheffield and London in doing so it allays much of the current anxiety about consumption and the media Timely and topical Changing Play will find its place alongside the Opies classic volumes Hugh Cunningham University of Kent UK Author of The Invention of Childhood This important new text challenges the prevailing view that children's play has been contaminated by access to digital technologies In exploring accounts of children's play from the 1950s and 60s to the present day against the backdrop of rapid changes within media and commercial markets the authors skillfully reveal the particular ways in which children's play has changed and stayed the same In so doing they invite the reader to reject romantic notions of lost childhoods and embrace the realities and richness of children's play in the 21st century I highly recommend this book Professor Trisha Maynard Director Research Centre for Children Families and Communities Canterbury Christ Church University UK
