

Classical Electrodynamics of an Electron

CLASSICAL ELECTRON:

- The characteristic of "Spin" is a real process of the Poynting flow of energy spinning into and out from the center, like a vortex of some kind.
- Only a portion of its magnetization vector is along the Z axis for spin Up or Down.
- The spin axis is separate from the precession axis as it should be.
- It really does precess and always radiates from its precessional motion.
- It is always radiating EM waves from orbital and precessional motions as expected.

Classical And Quantic Periodic Motions Of Multiply Polarized Spin Particles:

Classical and Quantic Periodic Motions of Multiply Polarized Spin-Particles Abbas Bahri, 1997-11-28 The author of this volume defines a diffusion flow for a variational problem lacking completeness related to the geometry of a contact form α and a vector field u in its kernel He analyzes the ends of the flow lines and finds them to be of two types one involving periodic orbits of the Reeb Hamiltonian vector field x and the other where asymptotes occur In the most general case these turn out to be periodic motions for x up to quantic jumps of a very special type along u He shows that the mathematical results and the physical interpretation fit and provide new points of view useful in the foundations of quantum mechanics

The purpose of this course was to give an overview of the physics of artificial semiconductor structures confining electrons and photons. It furnishes the background for several applications in particular in the domain of optical devices: lasers, light emitting diodes, or photonic crystals. The effects related to the microactivity polaritons, which are mixed electromagnetic radiation exciton states inside a semiconductor microactivity, are covered. The study of the characteristics of such states shows strong relations with the domain of cavity quantum electrodynamics and thus with the investigation of some fundamental theoretical concepts.
