Dressing In Feathers S. Elizabeth Bird, 2018-02-02
One hundred members of NatChat an electronic mail discussion group concerned with Native American issues responded to the recent Disney release Pocahontas by calling on parents to boycott the movie citing its historical inaccuracies and saying that Disney has let us down in a cruel irresponsible manner Their anger was rooted in the fact that although Disney had claimed that the film's portrayal of American Indians would be authentic the Pocahontas story the movie told was really white cultural myth The actual histories of the characters were replaced by mythic narratives depicting the crucial moments when aid was given to the white settlers As reconstructed the story serves to reassert for whites their right to be here easing any lingering guilt about the displacement of the native inhabitants To understand current imagery it is essential to understand the history of its making and these essays mesh to create a powerful interconnected account of image creation over the past 150 years The contributors who represent a range of disciplines and specialties reveal the distortions and fabrications white culture has imposed on significant historical and current events as represented by treasured artifacts such as photographic images taken of Sitting Bull following his surrender the national monument at the battlefield of Little Bighorn nineteenth century advertising the television phenomenon Northern Exposure and the film Dances with Wolves Well illustrated this volume demonstrates the complacency of white culture in its representation of its troubled relationship with American Indians

Mardorossian,2014-05-13 In recent years members of legal law enforcement media and academic circles have portrayed rape as a special kind of crime distinct from other forms of violence In Framing the Rape Victim Carine M Mardorossian argues that this differential treatment of rape has exacerbated the ghettoizing of sexual violence along gendered lines and has repeatedly led to women's being accused of triggering if not causing rape through immodest behavior, comportment, passivity or weakness. Contesting the notion that rape is the result of deviant behaviors of victims or perpetrators, Mardorossian argues that rape saturates our culture and defines masculinity's relation to femininity, both of which are structural positions rather than biologically derived ones. Using diverse examples throughout, Mardorossian draws from Hollywood film and popular culture to contemporary women's fiction and hospitalized birth, emphasizing that the position of dominant masculinity can be occupied by men, women or institutions, while structural femininity is a position that may define and subordinate men, minorities and other marginalized groups just as effectively as it does women. Highlighting the legacies of the politically correct debates of the 1990s and the terrorist attacks of 9/11, the book illustrates how the framing of the term 'victim' has played a fundamental role in constructing notions of agency that valorize autonomy and support exclusionary, especially masculine models of American selfhood. The gendering of rape, including by well-meaning, sometimes feminist voices that claim to have victims' best interests at heart, ultimately obscures its true role in our culture. Both a critical analysis and a call to action, Framing the Rape Victim shows that rape is not a special interest issue that pertains just to women but a pervasive one that affects our society as a whole.

The Verbal Art of Mobility in West Africa Nikolas Sweet, 2025-01-24 In recent years, migration across urban centers and national borders has radically reshaped West African societies and sparked a global debate on the legal and cultural processes of immigration. Along newly constructed international highways in southeastern Senegal, young men and women travel between regional centers and their hometowns in the wake of a gold mining boom that has brought new opportunities as well as risks. Previous scholarship on migration has often emphasized the movement of bodies and things. In The Verbal Art of Mobility in West Africa, instead of considering language primarily as a way to describe mobility as it happened, author Nikolas Sweet positions language as an essential infrastructure through which individuals forge material connections and communication channels across space and borders. This reinterpretation of migration emphasizes that language is a form of social action in its own right, one that does not merely reflect experiences in the world but can bring things into being. Mobility emerges not only from an individual's given mobile history but also through an attention to the linguistic resources deployed in everyday interactions with others. Based on ethnographic research on social interaction, verbal creativity and mobility in southeastern Senegal, The Verbal Art of Mobility in West Africa reveals how migrants use language to build social networks and mitigate risk amid socioeconomic and environmental precarity.

Letters to Jargon Andrew Rippeon, 2019-09-24 Gathers some of the most intimate personal writing on life and the art of poetry by a crucial figure in late twentieth-century American letters. Celebrated by both the Black Mountain poets in the 1950s and 1960s and the Language poets in the 1970s and 1980s, Larry Eigner's poems occupy an important place in American poetry and poetics, and his reputation and legacy grow seemingly stronger with each passing year. Letters to Jargon collects all of the known correspondence between Larry Eigner and Jonathan Williams, the influential publisher of Jargon Society Press and himself a poet Eigner's correspondence with Williams began in the early 1950s as the two were in conversation over the manuscript of On My Eyes published by Jargon in 1960 Their correspondence continued for many years thereafter extending into the period when Eigner's work started to gain recognition from the nascent movement that would become known as Language writing The letters are quite broad in their range of reference and provide a fuller context for Eigner's poetry and thinking Eigner and Williams discuss their own poetic practices including the source material for specific poems general writing practices and small press and little magazine publication This volume offers considerable insight into their shared literary communities as Eigner reports on his readings in contemporary poetry and poetics as well as his correspondence and contact with other poets including Charles Olson Vincent Ferrini Robert Duncan Denise Levertov Robert Grenier and Barrett Watten Also recorded are Eigner's reactions to current events and explications of his own poems including the contexts for appropriated lines and distinctions of character spacing Eigner also shares with Williams details of his home life his financial difficulties and the daily challenges of his cerebral palsy Finally the book features a series of images of the original letters enabling readers to see Eigner's specific material textual practices
