The Victims at the Berlin Wall 1961-1989 Hans-Hermann Hertle,Maria Nooke,2011 Although many deaths at the Berlin Wall have been publicized over the years in the media the number identity and fate of the victims still remain largely unknown This handbook changes this by answering the following questions How many people actually died at the Berlin Wall between 1961 and 1989 Who were these people How did they die How were their relatives and their friends treated after their deaths What public and political reactions were triggered in the East and the West by these fatalities What were the consequences for the border guards who pulled the trigger and the military and political leaders who gave them their orders after the East German border regime collapsed and the Wall fell How have the victims been commemorated since their deaths By documenting the lives and circumstances under which these men and women died at the Wall these deaths are placed in a contemporary historical context The authors in addition to systematically researching the relevant archives and

The book consists of four studies on the famous Russian writer and historian who lived from 1766 1826 and his connections with Germany In 1789 Karamzin did not only visit various German towns and monuments but also interview philosophers and men of letters like Kant Nicolai Herder or Wieland The episodes from his LETTERS OF A RUSSIAN TRAVELER have been widely dismissed as fictional However as this author can show archival records and even contemporary newspapers prove that Karamzin did not invent anything On the contrary his epistles turn out to be an invaluable source of knowledge for instance on the conditions of Russians temporarily or permanently living at the time in Prussia in particular Berlin and Potsdam By a strange twist of history several of Karamzin s autographs have found their way back to Germany above all to the Staatsbibliothek in Berlin the very library the young Karamzin had borrowed a volume from more than two centuries before These papers aside from an earlier autograph of 1789 in Nurnberg range from 1806 till 1821 and are commented upon in the last part of the present publication
