Victorian Women and the Theatre of Trance Amy Lehman, 2014-01-10 Spiritualists in the nineteenth century spoke of the Borderland a shadowy threshold where the living communed with the dead and where those in the material realm could receive comfort or advice from another world The skilled performances of mostly female actors and performers made the Borderland a theatre of sorts in which dramas of revelation and recognition were produced in the forms of seances trances and spiritualist lectures This book examines some of the most fascinating American and British actresses of the Victorian era whose performances fairly mesmerized their audiences of amused skeptics and ardent believers It also focuses on the transformative possibilities of the spiritualist theatre revealing how the performances allowed Victorian women to speak act and create outside the boundaries of their restricted social and psychological roles Representing Female Artistic Labour, 1848-1890 Patricia Zakreski, 2016-12-05 Patricia Zakreski's interdisciplinary study draws on fiction prose painting and the periodical press to expand and redefine our understanding of women's relationship to paid work during the Victorian period While the idea of separate spheres has largely gone uncontested by feminist critics studying female labour during the nineteenth century Zakreski challenges this distinction by showing that the divisions between public and private were in fact surprisingly flexible with homes described as workplaces and workplaces as homes By combining art with forms of industrial or mass production in representations of the respectable woman worker writers projected a form of paid creative work that was not violated or profaned by the public world of the market in which it was traded Looking specifically at sewing art writing and acting Zakreski shows how these professions increasingly came to be defined as artistic and thus as suitable professions for middle class women and argues that the supposedly degrading activity of paid work could be transformed into a refining experience for women Rather than consigning working women to the margins of patriarchal culture then her study shows how representations of creative women by authors such as Elizabeth Barrett Browning Dinah Craik Charles Dickens Anthony Trollope and Charlotte Yonge participated in and shaped new forms of mainstream culture British Women's History, 1996 This is one of a series of bibliographical guides designed to meet the needs of undergraduates postgraduates and their teachers in universities and colleges of further education All volumes in the series share a number of common characteristics They are selective manageable in size and include those books and articles which are considered most important and useful All are edited by practising teachers of the subject in question and are based on their experience of the needs of students The arrangement combines chronological with thematic divisions Most of the items listed receive some descriptive comment The Routledge Reader in Gender and Performance Lizbeth Goodman, Jane de Gay, 2002-01-31 The first reader in this field Contributions from many of the top academics in the field Extremely broad in its coverage essays written by the Theatre and Intermediality Research Group of the International Federation for Theatre Research which assesses intermediality in theatre and performance The book draws on the history of ideas to present a concept of intermediality as an integration of thoughts and medial processes and it locates intermediality at the intersections situated in between the performers the observers and the confluence of media medial spaces and art forms involved in performance at a particular moment in time Referencing examples from contemporary theatre cinema television opera dance and puppet theatre the book puts forward a thesis that the intermedial is a space where the boundaries soften and we are in between and within a mixing of space media and realities with theatre providing the staging space for intermediality The book places theatre and performance at the heart of the new media debate and will be of keen interest to students with clear relevance to undergraduates and post graduates in Theatre Studies and Film and Media Studies as well as the theatre research community
