Larry Brown Jean W. Cash, 2011-07-20 Larry Brown 1951-2004 was unique among writers who started their careers in the late twentieth century Unlike most of them his friends Clyde Edgerton Jill McCorkle Rick Bass and Kaye Gibbons among others he was neither a product of a writing program nor did he teach at one In fact he did not even attend college His innate talent his immersion in the life of north Mississippi and his determination led him to national success Drawing on excerpts from numerous letters and material from interviews with family members and friends Larry Brown A Writer's Life is the first biography of a landmark southern writer Jean W. Cash explores the cultural milieu of Oxford Mississippi and the writers who influenced Brown including William Faulkner Flannery O'Connor Harry Crews and Cormac McCarthy She covers Brown's history in Mississippi the troubled family in which he grew up and his boyhood in Tula and Yocona Mississippi and in Memphis Tennessee She relates stories from Brown's time in the Marines his early married life which included sixteen years as an Oxford fireman and what he called his apprenticeship period the eight years during which he was teaching himself to write publishable fiction The book examines Brown's years as a writer the stories and novels he wrote his struggles to acclimate himself to the fame his writing brought him and his many trips outside Yocona where he spent the last thirty years of his life The book concludes with a discussion of his posthumous fame including the publication of A Miracle of Catfish the novel he had nearly completed just before his death Brown's cadre of fans will relish this comprehensive portrait of the man and his work National Plots Andrea Cabajsky, Brett Josef Grubisic, 2010-07-09 Fiction that reconsiders challenges reshapes and or upholds national narratives of history has long been an integral aspect of Canadian literature Works by writers of historical fiction from early practitioners such as John Richardson to contemporary figures such as Alice Munro and George Elliott Clarke propose new views and understandings of Canadian history and individual relationships to it

Critical evaluation of these works sheds light on the complexity of these depictions. The contributors in National Plots: Historical Fiction and Changing Ideas of Canada critically examine texts with subject matter ranging from George Vancouver's west coast explorations to the eradication of the Beothuk in Newfoundland. Reflecting diverse methodologies and theoretical approaches, the essays seek to explicate depictions of the historical in individual texts and to explore larger questions relating to historical fiction as a genre with complex and divergent political motivations and goals. Although the topics of the essays vary widely, as a whole, the collection raises and answers questions about the significance of the roles historical fiction has played within Canadian culture for nearly two centuries.

D. Salinger, and Jamaica Kincaid, as well as engaging pieces on the promising new writers to come on the scene.

Becoming Ray Bradbury Jonathan R. Eller, 2011-08-10 Becoming Ray Bradbury chronicles the making of an iconic American writer by exploring Ray Bradbury's childhood and early years of his long life in fiction, film, television, radio, and theater. Jonathan R. Eller measures the impact of the author's artists, illustrators, and filmmakers who stimulated Bradbury's imagination throughout his first three decades. Unprecedented access to Bradbury's personal papers and other private collections provides insight into his emerging talent through his unpublished correspondence, his rare but often insightful notes on writing, and his interactions with those who mentored him during those early years. Beginning with his childhood in Waukegan, Illinois, and Los Angeles, this biography follows Bradbury's development from avid reader to maturing author, making a living writing for the genre pulps and mainstream magazines. Eller illuminates the sources of Bradbury's growing interest in the human mind, the human condition, and the ambiguities of life and death, themes that became increasingly apparent in his early fiction. Bradbury's correspondence documents his frustrating encounters with the major trade publishing houses and his earliest unpublished reflections on the nature of authorship. Eller traces the sources of Bradbury's very conscious decisions following the sudden success of The Martian Chronicles and The Illustrated Man to voice controversial political statements in his fiction. Eller also elucidates the complex creative motivations that yielded Fahrenheit 451. Becoming Ray Bradbury reveals Bradbury's emotional world as it matured through his explorations of cinema and art, his interactions with agents and editors, his reading discoveries, and the invaluable reading suggestions of older writers. These largely unexplored elements of his life pave the way to a deeper understanding of his more public achievements, providing a biography of the mind, the story of Bradbury's self-education, and the emerging sense of authorship at the heart of his
