The Aging Mouth D. B. Ferguson,1987-11-24 Investigative Pathology of Odontogenic Cysts Roger M. Browne,2019-06-04 First published in 1991 Investigative Pathology of Odontogenic Cysts presents a unique and succinct review of the pathology of odontogenic cysts The book emphasizes investigative pathology of odontogenic cysts and uses numerous illustrations and tables to reinforce and summarize discussions presented in the text The book s most important aspect is its attempt to bring together new information regarding odontogenesis and the pathogenesis of odontogenic cysts Oral biologists and pathologists working with dental tissues will find this book an important reference resource Aging and Cell Structure John E. Johnson,2013-11-11 Although thousands of articles and hundreds of books on aging have been published only a small percentage of this material has dealt with anatomy particularly at the fine structural level It was with this in mind that Aging and Cell Structure was conceived Volume 1 of Aging and Cell Structure was published in 1981 and represented a current compilation of information concentrating at the electron microscopic level on morphological changes which occur in cells and tissues as they age The present volume completes the two volume set While Volume 1 highlighted structural changes occurring in the aging nervous system Volume 2 centers its efforts on studies of in vitro aging Chapters on other subjects are included as well These include age related changes seen in neuromuscular junctions oral tissues and the pancreas Although these two volumes represent a very small part of the published information on experimental gerontology their approach is rather unique because they focus on anatomy perhaps the most basic of all the biomedical sciences Because many different tissue types are examined we begin to see recurrent definitive patterns in the aging cell which may not be fully apparent from studies taking one cell type at a time This becomes even more evident in the present volume where changes seen in populations of cells grown in culture isolated from hormones or nervous impulses from other body areas are found to be similar to those changes found in vivo
