Documenta IX:

Thinking Art Antoon van den Braembussche, 2009-09-29 In the twentieth century avant garde movements have pushed the concept of art far beyond its traditional boundaries In this dynamical process of constant renewal the prestige of thinking about art as a legitimizing practice has come to the fore So it is hardly surprising that the past decades have been characterized by a revival or even breakthrough of philosophy of art as a discipline However the majority of books on aesthetics fail to combine a systematical philosophical discourse with a real exploration of art practice Thinking Art attempts to deal with this traditional shortcoming It is indeed not only an easily accessible and systematic account of the classical modern and postmodern theories of art but also concludes each chapter with an artist's studio in which the practical relevance of the discussed theory is amply demonstrated by concrete examples Moreover each chapter ends with a section on further reading in which all relevant literature is discussed in detail Thinking Art provides its readers with a theoretical framework that can be used to think about art from a variety of perspectives More particularly it shows how a fruitful cross fertilization between theory and practice can be created This book can be used as a handbook within departments of philosophy history of art media and cultural studies cultural history and of course within art academies Though the book explores theories of art from Plato to Derrida it does not presuppose any acquaintance with philosophy from its readers It can thus be read also by artists art critics museum directors and anyone interested in the meaning of art Jan Hoet - on the Way to Documenta IX. Jan Hoet, 1991 Symmetry as a Developmental Principle in Nature and Art Werner Hahn, 1998 Looking beyond the boundaries of various disciplines the author demonstrates that symmetry is a fascinating phenomenon which provides endless stimulation and challenges He explains that it is possible to readapt art to the sciences and vice versa by means of an evolutionary concept of symmetry Many pictorial examples are included to enable the reader to fully understand the issues discussed Based on the artistic evidence that the author has collected he proposes that the new ars evolutoria can function as an example for the sciences The book is divided into three distinct parts each one focusing on a special issue In Part I the phenomenon of symmetry including its discovery and meaning is reviewed The author looks closely at how Vitruvius Polyclitus Democritus Plato Aristotle Plotinus Augustine Alberti Leonardo da Vinci and Durer viewed symmetry This is followed by an explanation on how the concept of symmetry developed The author further discusses symmetry as it appears in art and science as well as in the modern age Later he expounds the view of symmetry as an evolutionary concept which can lead to a new unity of science In Part II he covers the points of contact between the form developing process in nature and art He deals with biological questions in particular evolution The collection of new and precise data on perception and knowledge with regard to the postulated reality of symmetry leads to further development of the evolutionary theory of symmetry in Part III The author traces the enormous treasure of observations made in nature and culture back to a few underlying structural principles He demonstrates symmetry as a far reaching leading structuring causal element of evolution as the idea lying behind nature and culture Numerous controllable reproducible double mirror experiments on a new stereoscopic vision verify a symmetrization theory of perception Arts and Power Lisa Gaupp, Alenka Barber-Kersovan, Volker Kirchberg, 2022-09-05 The focus on concepts of power and domination in societal structures has characterized sociology since its beginnings Max Weber's definition of power as imposing one's will on others is still relevant to explaining processes in the arts whether their production imagination communication distribution critique or consumption Domination in the arts is exercised by internal and external rulers through institutionalized social structures and through beliefs about their legitimacy achieved by defining and shaping art tastes The complexity of how the arts relate to power arises from the complexity of the policies of artistic production distribution and consumption policies which serve to facilitate or hinder an aesthetic object from reaching its intended public Curators critics and collectors employ a variety of forms of cultural and artistic communication to mirror and shape the dominant social economic and political conditions Arts and Power Policies in and by the Arts brings together diverse voices who position the societal functions of art in fields of domination and power of structure and agency whether they are used to impose hegemonic totalitarian or unjust goals or to pursue social purposes fostering equal rights and grassroots democracy The contributions in this volume are exploratory steps towards what we believe can be a more systematic empirically and theoretically founded sociological debate on the arts and power And they are an invitation to take further steps Infrastructure and Form Karin Zitzewitz, 2022-09-06 In the 1990s and 2000s contemporary art in India changed radically in form as an art world once dominated by painting began to support installation new media and performance In response to the liberalization of India's economy art was cultivated by a booming market as well as by new nonprofit institutions that combined strong local roots and transnational connections The result was an unprecedented efflorescence of contemporary art and growth of a network of institutions radiating out from India Among the first studies of contemporary South Asian art Infrastructure and Form engages with sixteen of India's leading contemporary artists and art collectives to examine what made this development possible Karin Zitzewitz articulates the connections among formal trajectories of medium and material curatorial frames and networks of circulation and the changing conditions of everyday life after economic liberalization By untangling the complex interactions of infrastructure and form the book offers a discussion of the barriers and conduits that continue to shape global contemporary art and its relationship to capital more broadly The Collection Museum van Hedendaagse Kunst (Ghent, Belgium), Jan Hoet, 1999 Betrü a Werke von Jos Marie Burki Thomas Hirschhorn Meret Oppenheim und Dieter Roth A Cultural History of the Avant-Garde in the Nordic Countries Since 1975, 2022-08-15 The Cultural History of the Avant Garde in the Nordic Countries Since 1975 is the final volume of the four volume series of cultural histories of the avant garde movements in the Nordic countries This volume carries the avant garde discussion forward to present day avant gardes challenged by the globalisation of the entertainment industries and new interactive media such as the internet The avant garde can now be considered a tradition that has been made more widely available through the opening of archives electronic documentation and new research which has spurred both re enactments revisions and continuations of historical avant garde practices while new cultural contexts political technological and ecological conditions have called for new strategies Women Artists in the 20th and 21st Century Ilka Becker,2001 Taschen s inventive layout is effective in presenting the provocative works words and biographies of the nearly 100 women artists gathered here Grosenick a freelance art historian in Germany has selected women artists working in Germany the US South Africa Japan Poland France Scandinavia and Spain among other countries The entry for each artist is six pages with much of the space devoted to good quality color photos of her work c Book News Inc Contemporary Representations of Forced Migration in Europe Fiona Barclay,Beatrice Ivey,2024-03-13 This book engages with current debates around refugeedom by examining cultural production that represents and interrogates the construction of refugees and the refugee experience on the borders of contemporary Europe The refugee subject is produced by discursive regimes and border practices inherited from colonial projects that construct the diametrically opposed concepts of citizen and refugee and their attendant administrative sub categories In the early twenty first century these categories have been strengthened by the politicisation of forced migration and the hardening of Fortress Europe While the predominant response to the increasing numbers of refugees seeking asylum in Europe has been to harden the borders regime on the one hand or to stress the common humanity of those displaced refuge on the other this volume argues that both approaches result in refugees becoming objectified othered and abstracted as vectors of exile It explores what recent cultural production can achieve in engaging with and representing issues of dispossession detention and resettlement and probes the limits of artistic potential to mediate the refugee experience It examines transnational approaches to cultural production that both occupy and exceed the borders of Europe with a focus on borderscapes spaces of detention and neo colonialism Bringing together original contributions from an international range of scholars it analyses contemporary textual and visual representations of forced migration to argue that other forms of solidarity and hospitality towards refugees in Europe and beyond must be possible Former Neighbors, Future Allies? A. Dana Weber,2023-03-10 German studies scholars from various disciplines often use and reference ethnography yet do not often present ethnography as a core methodology and research approach Former Neighbors Future Allies emphasizes how German studies engages in methods and theories of ethnography Through a variety of topics and from multiple perspectives including literature folklore history sociology and anthropology this volume draws attention to how ethnography bridges transdisciplinary and international research in German studies Trespasses Masao Miyoshi,2010-04-07 Trespasses presents key writings of the cultural critic Masao Miyoshi including eleven previously published selections and a major new essay in which he calls for a global environmental protection studies The Art and Science of Interface and Interaction Design (Vol. 1) Christa Sommerer,Laurent Mignonneau,2008-09-08 Artists and creators in interactive art and interaction design have long been

On Abstract Art Briony Fer, 1997-01-01 Many people are intrigued by the abstract work of artists like Mondrian and Jackson Pollock yet find it difficult to explain why In this timely and original book Briony Fer introduces abstract painting and sculpture of the twentieth century and explores new ways to think about abstract art and the problems of interpretation it raises Fer speculates on the kind of language required to describe the often tantalizing effects of key abstract works and on ways to discuss critical issues when a work of art is without subject matter Drawing particularly on psychoanalytic theory and the writings of Georges Bataille she examines a wide range of models of abstraction ranging from the early European emphasis on the transcendental possibilities of pure form to later modernist frameworks developed in the United States Each of the ten chapters in the book addresses a particular problem associated with abstract art by focusing closely on specific works produced by such artists as Malevich Mondrian Kandinsky Arp Mir Pollock Eva Hesse and Donald Judd Fer investigates the involvement of women artists such as Lyubov Popova and the problems of sexual difference in the development of abstract art Countering the idealizing rhetoric of modernist criticism On Abstract Art uncovers a latent corporeal and darker side to abstraction and deepens today's discussion of a variety of critical concerns in contemporary art
