Alexis Returns:

At Risk Jennifer Griffiths, 2022-12-28 Jennifer Griffiths's At Risk: Black Youth and the Creative Imperative in the Post Civil Rights Era focuses on literary representations of adolescent artists as they develop strategies to intervene against the stereotypes that threaten to limit their horizons. The authors of the analyzed works capture and convey the complex experience of the generation of young people growing up in the era after the civil rights movement. Through creative experiments they carefully consider what it means to be narrowed within the scope of a sociological problem all while trying to expand the perspective of creative liberation. In short they explore what it means to be deemed an at risk youth. This book looks at crucial works beginning in 1968 ranging from Sapphire's Push and Walter Dean Myers's Monster and Dael Orlandersmith's The Gimmick to Bill Gunn's Johnnas. Each text offers unique representations of Black gifted children whose creative processes help them to navigate simultaneous hypervisibility and invisibility as racialized subjects. The book addresses the ways that adolescents experience the perilous at risk label which threatens to narrow adolescent existence at a developmental moment that requires an orientation toward possibility and a freedom to experiment. Ultimately At Risk considers the distinct possibilities and challenges of the post civil rights era and how the period allows for a more honest multilayered and forthright depiction of Black youth subjectivity against the adultification that forecloses potential.

Flesh Made Word Aviad M. Kleinberg, 2008 In the fourth century a new narrative genre captured the imagination of the faithful: the accounts of the lives of Christian saints. Kleinberg argues that these stories were more than edifying entertainment. By retelling the story of virtue and salvation by expanding the religious imagination of the West they were reshaping Christianity itself.

Informal Teaching and Learning Rosemary C. Henze, Rosemary Henze, 2012-10-12 Based on an ethnographic study conducted in a Greek community this book celebrates the small ways people teach and learn while they are engaged in other supposedly more important activities. By examining the intricate ways in which knowledge and skills of everyday life are transmitted it shows how family, community and culture shape the cognitive world of learners. Beginning with a rich description of the community and its culture the book then focuses on six contrasting episodes of informal instruction. Video and audiotaped scenes of learning to dance, learning to perform the healing art of cupping and learning about kinship for example provide material for detailed analyses. The book demonstrates the interplay of culture and learning by exploring how the cultural theme of struggle and the use of different interpretive frames shaped informal instruction in this community and how at the same time processes of informal teaching and learning contributed to the evolving construction of culture by its members. Interpretive framing emerges as a key concept that studies of situated cognition must consider. Since formal and informal instruction are closely linked the culturally specific ways of teaching and learning shown in informal instruction will help all educators meet the needs of diverse student bodies.
