In the Shadow of Memory Floyd Skloot, 2004-09-01 In December 1988 Floyd Skloot was stricken by a virus that targeted his brain leaving him totally disabled and utterly changed In the Shadow of Memory is an intimate picture of what it is like to find oneself possessed of a ravaged memory and unstable balance and confronted by wholesale changes in both cognitive and emotional powers Skloot also explores the gradual reassembling of himself putting together his scattered memories rediscovering the meaning of childhood and family history and learning a new way to be at home in the world Combining the author's skills as a poet and novelist this book finds humor meaning and hope in the story of a fragmented life made whole by love and the courage to thrive

Communicating Popular Science S. Perrault, 2013-07-12 Technoscientific developments often have far reaching consequences both negative and positive for the public Yet because science has the authority to decide which judgments about scientific issues are sound public concerns are often dismissed because they are not part of the technoscientific paradigm they question This book addresses the role of science popularization in that paradox it explains how science writing works and argues that it can do better at promoting public discussions about science related issues To support these arguments it situates science popularization in its historical and cultural context provides a conceptual framework for analyzing popular science texts and examines the rhetorical effects of common strategies used in popular science writing Twenty six years after Dorothy Nelkin's groundbreaking book Selling Science How the Press Covers Science and Technology popular science writing is still not meeting its potential as a public interest genre Communicating Popular Science explores how it can move closer to doing so

The Possibility of the Sublime Jane Forsey, 2018-04-18 The notion of the sublime used to describe a particular kind of overwhelming or exhilarating aesthetic experience has garnered a great deal of attention by philosophers critical theorists and literary scholars In the midst of this growing body of literature Professor Jane Forsey published an article asking whether an aesthetic theory of the sublime is even possible and argued provocatively in the negative Claiming that efforts to explain the sublime inevitably result in theories that are either contradictory or incoherent Forsey posed a challenge to anyone who takes the sublime seriously as an aesthetic category This volume brings together an international slate of philosophers and scholars of the sublime who have been invited to respond to and critically engage with Forsey s article Unlike other monographs and anthologies that deal broadly with the sublime in aesthetics this collection examines specific conceptual problems with the very foundations of sublime theory in a manner that is tightly focused and rigorous It represents a variety of approaches that defend the sublime and concludes with an original response by Professor Forsey to her critics

Rivers for Life Sandra Postel, Brian Richter, 2012-06-22 The conventional approach to river protection has focused on water quality and maintaining some minimum flow that was thought necessary to ensure the viability of a river In recent years however scientific research has underscored the idea that the ecological health of a river system depends not on a minimum amount of water at any one time but on the naturally variable quantity and timing of flows throughout the year In Rivers for Life leading water experts Sandra Postel and Brian Richter explain why restoring and preserving more natural river flows are key to sustaining freshwater biodiversity and healthy river systems and describe innovative policies scientific approaches and management reforms for achieving those goals Sandra Postel and Brian Richter explain the value of healthy rivers to human and ecosystem health describe the ecological processes that support river ecosystems and how they have been disrupted by dams diversions and other alterations consider the scientific basis for determining how much water a river needs examine new management paradigms focused on restoring flow patterns and sustaining ecological health assess the policy options available for managing rivers and other freshwater systems explore building blocks for better river governance Sandra Postel and Brian Richter offer case studies of river management from the United States the San Pedro Green and Missouri Australia the Brisbane and South Africa the Sabie along with numerous examples of new and innovative policy approaches that are being implemented in those and other countries Rivers for Life presents a global perspective on the challenges of managing water for people and nature with a concise yet comprehensive overview of the relevant science policy and management issues It presents exciting and inspirational information for anyone concerned with water policy planning and management river conservation freshwater biodiversity or related topics
