13th International Cancer Congress Edwin A. Mirand, William B. Hutchinson, Enrico Mihich, 1983 13th International Cancer Congress, 1983 Scientific Directory and Annual Bibliography National Institutes of Health (U.S.), 1984 Each issue lists papers published during the preceding year The Future of Predictive Safety Evaluation A.N. Worden, D.V. Parke, J. Marks, 2012-12-06 Reproduction and fetal development in humans and experimental animals may be adversely affected by a wide range of drugs and environmental agents They may be toxic in the parental generation leading to impaired germ cell formation loss of reproductive potential and infertility following chronic exposure Deviant fetal development occurs as a consequence of cellular damage at sensitive stages in development Changes seen range from intrauterine mortality and structural malformation to growth retardation with physiological and behavioural defects Concepts on the mechanism of action of teratogens are discussed with reference to some better known agents Presently regulatory authorities prefer whole animal studies in predictive safety evaluation of substances to which a pregnant woman may be exposed Tests are conducted over one or more generations and are designed to study the influence of test compounds upon general reproductive performance fertility fetal development and perinatal and postnatal behaviour Experiments are designed to permit compounds to be tested under conditions resembling expected human exposure Small rodents and rabbits are preferred species on account of their convenience as laboratory animals and the available knowledge regarding their reproductive behaviour fetal development and known sensitivity to human teratogens Hormone Therapy in Breast and Prostate Cancer JORDAN V. CRAIG, B.J.A. Furr, 2010-02-05 This book describes the principles underlying targeted hormonal treatments assesses the actions of new and established agents and illustrates the new applications of hormonal chemoprevention for breast cancer Cumulated Index Medicus, 1977 The British Journal of Cancer, 1984 Cellular Interactions by Environmental Tumor Promoters Hirota Fujiki, 1984-12 Considerable progress in our understanding of tumor promotion has been made by cancer researchers throughout the world In addition scientists in several other disciplines have made significant contributions in elucidating the pleiotropic effects of tumor promotion This international symposium was specifically convened to review research progress in these areas and to consider the relevance of these findings to human cancer causation and prevention The proceedings include the contributions of leading researchers from Europe Japan and the USA Several papers report the exciting progress made in understanding how tumor promoters act at the cellular and biochemical levels Elsewhere attention is focused on tumor promotion as an important phase in the occurrence of certain human tumors It is hoped that advances in the understanding of the mechanism of tumor promotion in experimental systems will lead to new and effective approaches to human cancer prevention The proceedings will be of interest and value to researchers working in cancer research biochemistry molecular genetics mutagenesis and cell biology British Journal of Cancer, 1984 Molecular Carcinogenesis and the Molecular Biology of Human Cancer David

Warshawsky, Joseph R. Chemical Carcinogenesis Francisco Feo, Paolo Pani, 2013-11-11 About two centuries after the communication by Sir Percival Pott that the chimney sweeper disease was a cancer and its suggestion that active compounds of soot were the causative agents and about one century after the description of urinary bladder cancer in dye workers an enormous number of substances have been synthesized and have probably come into contact with man Research in cancer prevention is of primary importance and may receive continuous support from new discoveries on cancer etiology and pathogenesis If one accepts the multistage model of chemical carcinogenesis one has also to accept that many events occur between the contact of carcinogenic compounds and their specific targets and the development of a clinically recognizable neoplasm Thus animal studies become essential to elucidate the different steps by which chemical carcinogens induce neoplasia The analysis of these steps and the comparative evaluation of experimental models is essential to an understanding of pathogenesis

Sister Chromatid Exchanges Raymond Tice, 2013-06-29 Chromosomes being well defined structures that are easily visible under the optical microscope readily lend themselves to intense physical and biochemical study The understanding of the structure and function of this most critical genetic material has progressed through a number of interesting stages Often connected with the development of new techniques in staining and photography using the standard microscope and the electron microscope It is interesting to look back at the history of cytogenetics I would like especially to emphasize the work of Karl Sax and many of his students Work with Tradescantia became feasible after Edgar Anderson straightened out the ecology and Sax took advantage of the small number of chromosomes easily visible under the microscope As a matter of fact this development is seen as the foundation for the quantitative analysis of radiation effects on chromosomes During the 50 years since then more refined studies have been initiated The study of cytogenetic mechanisms has become an important tool for the recognition of the effects of environmental factors on all living systems and has made SCE studies possible One of the most important stages in chromosome research was the development in radiation biology of radiolabeling the chromosome with tritiated thymidine This technique published in 1957 by Dr
