20 Common Problems In Primary Care:

20 Common Problems : Primary Care ,1999 Measures of Health Literacy Institute of Medicine,Board on Population Health and Public Health Practice,Roundtable on Health Literacy,2009-12-30 Health literacy the ability for individuals to obtain process and understand basic health information and services to facilitate appropriate health decisions is increasingly recognized as an important facet of health care and health outcomes Although research on health literacy has grown tremendously in the past decade there is no widely agreed upon framework for health literacy as a determinant of health outcomes Most instruments focus on assessing an individual s health literacy yet the scope of health literacy reaches far beyond an individual s skills and abilities Health literacy occurs in the context of the health care system and therefore measures of health literacy must also assess the demands and complexities of the health care systems with which patients interact For example measures are needed to determine how well the system has been organized so that it can be navigated by individuals with different levels of health literacy and how well health organizations are doing at making health information understandable and actionable To examine what is known about measures of health literacy the Institute of Medicine convened a workshop The workshop summarized in this volume reviews the current status of measures of health literacy including those used in the health care setting discusses possible surrogate measures that might be used to assess health literacy and explores ways in which health literacy measures can be used to assess patient centered approaches to care Family-Oriented Primary Care Susan H. Ethical Issues in Clinical Neuropsychology Shane Bush, Michael Drexler, 2002-01-01

Until now there has been no single volume in which a broad and comprehensive scope of ethical questions in neuropsychology is discussed. These editors have sought to fill that gap calling upon leading thinkers in the field of neuropsychology and ethics. Ethical Issues in Clinical Neuropsychology affords the seasoned practitioner as well as the beginner a broad sampling of research and commentary on the ethical dilemmas involved in the clinical practice of Neuropsychology. Part 1 presents ethical issues that arise in the provision of neuropsychological services irrespective of setting whereas Part 2 concentrates on the unique ethical challenges that attend practice with specific populations. Each chapter offers a rare view into the actual practice of Neuropsychology and the examples highlight an oft quoted observation at Ethics Committee meetings that good clinical practice is good ethical practice. Carefully crafted vignettes allow the reader to apply these concepts to a myriad of situations confronting practicing clinical neuropsychologists. The discerning reader of Ethical Issues in Clinical Neuropsychology should have no difficulty translating between the 1992 and the proposed ethics code. This is a volume that will be a meaningful addition not only to the libraries of graduate students, interns and postdoctoral fellows but also to the reference shelves of established practitioners and those preparing for board certification examinations in neuropsychology. This book will be of interest to neuropsychologists, rehabilitation psychologists, clinical psychologists and ethicists.
