Community, 1870 - 1945 Salima Tyabji, 2024-01-16 Muslims formed a disparate and unwieldy community in Bombay in the nineteenth century The Islam that was professedly held in common by various groups could barely provide a sense of unity or cohesion to people so widely diverse in terms of language customs and also of forms and practices of belief By the middle of the nineteenth century a class of wealthy ship owners ship builders and merchants belonging to the varied communities that constituted the city of which Muslims formed an important part had emerged This class was outward looking modern and generally reformist in outlook Gujarati or Maharashtrian its goals of social reform education as well as political awareness were gradually beginning to be perceived as goals held across communities and increasingly across different regions The questions that were being raised in the social turmoil of the period amongst Hindus were over issues of female education the age of marriage widow remarriage and female seclusion These issues were not foreign to the Muslim community and the part played by Muslim leaders in Bombay in discussing and negotiating them was not an insignificant one taking into account the size and relative backwardness of the community Within this context this book traces the evolving identity of a Bombay family and its changing social and political views in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries using three main sources their family journals an individual memoir journal and letters written home from Europe Global Bollywood

The Neighborhood of Gods William Elison, 2018-12-10 There are many holy cities in India but Mumbai is not usually considered one of them More popular images of the city capture the world's collective imagination as a Bollywood fantasia or a slumland dystopia Yet for many if not most people who live in the city the neighborhood streets are indeed shared with local gods and guardian spirits In The Neighborhood of Gods William Elison examines the link between territory and divinity in India's most self-consciously modern city In this densely settled environment space is scarce and anxiety about housing is pervasive Consecrating space first with impromptu displays and then eventually with full-blown temples and official recognition is one way of staking a claim But how can a marginalized community make its gods visible and therefore powerful in the eyes of others The Neighborhood of Gods explores this question bringing an ethnographic lens to a range of visual and spatial practices from the shrine construction that encroaches on downtown streets to the tribal art practices of an indigenous group facing displacement to the work of image production at two Bollywood film studios A pioneering ethnography this book offers a creative intervention in debates on postcolonial citizenship urban geography and visuality in the religions of India

Self, Nation, Text in Salman Rushdie's "Midnight's Children" Neil ten Kortenaar, 2004-01-21 Many non-Indian readers find the historical and cultural references in Salman Rushdie's Midnight's Children demanding In his close reading of the novel Neil ten Kortenaar offers postcolonial literary strategies for understanding Midnight's Children that also challenge some of the prevailing interpretations of the novel Using hybridity mimicry national allegory and cosmopolitanism all key critical concepts of postcolonial theory ten Kortenaar reads Midnight's Children as an allegory of history as a Bildungsroman and psychological study of a burgeoning national consciousness and as a representation of the nation He shows that the hybridity of Rushdie's fictional India is not created by different elements forming a whole but by the relationship among them Self Nation Text in Salman Rushdie's Midnight's Children also makes an original argument about how nation states are imagined and how national consciousness is formed in the citizen The protagonist Saleem Sinai heroically identifies himself with the state but this identification is beaten out of him until in the end he sees himself as the Common Man at the mercy of the state Ten Kortenaar reveals Rushdie's India to be more self-conscious than many communal identities based on language it is an India haunted by a dark twin called Pakistan a nation in the way England is a nation but imagined against England Mistrusting the openness of Tagore's Hindu India it is both cosmopolitan and a specific subjective location

Alternative Indias Peter Morey, Alex Tickell, 2005 The debate over whether religious or secular identities provide the most viable model for a wider national identity has been a continuous feature of Indian politics from the late nineteenth century to the present day Moreover in the last thirty years the increasingly communal articulation of popular politics and the gradual rise of a constellation of Hindu nationalist parties headed by the BJP has increased the urgency of this debate While Indian writing in English has fostered a long tradition of political dissent and has repeatedly questioned ethnocentric culturally exclusive forms of political identification few critics have considered how this literature engages directly with communalism or charted the literary political response to key events such as the Babri Masjid Ramjanmabhumi affair and the recent growth of popular forms of Hindu nationalism
