Bomber Battle For Berlin:

The Berlin Raids Martin Middlebrook, 2010-07-12 A meticulously documented account that covers the RAF's controversial attempt to end World War II by the aerial bombing of Berlin. Kirkus Reviews: The Battle of Berlin was the longest and most sustained bombing offensive against one target in the Second World War. Bomber Command's Commander in Chief Sir Arthur Harris hoped to wreck Berlin from end to end and produce a state of devastation in which German surrender was inevitable. He dispatched nineteen major raids between August 1943 and March 1944; more than ten thousand aircraft sorties dropped over thirty thousand tons of bombs on Berlin. It was the RAF's supreme effort to end the war by aerial bombing. But Berlin was not destroyed and the RAF lost more than six hundred aircraft and their crews. The controversy over whether the Battle of Berlin was a success or failure has continued ever since. Martin Middlebrook brings to this subject considerable experience as a military historian. In preparing his material, he collected documents from both sides; many of the German ones never before used. He has also interviewed and corresponded with over four hundred of the people involved in the battle and has made trips to Germany to interview the people of Berlin and Luftwaffe aircrews. He has achieved the difficult task of bringing together both sides of the Battle of Berlin: the bombing force and the people on the ground to tell a coherent single story. His straightforward narrative covers the 19 major raids with a detailed description of three in particular and includes recollections by British and German airmen as well as German civilians who weathered the storm. Bomber Battle for Berlin Martin Middlebrook, 2010 The Battle of Berlin was the longest and most sustained bombing offensive against one target in the Second World War. Bomber Command's Commander in Chief Sir Arthur Harris hoped to wreck Berlin from end to end and produce a state of devastation in which German surrender is inevitable. He dispatched nineteen major raids between August 1943 and March 1944; more than 10 000 aircraft sorties dropped over 30 000 tons of bombs on Berlin. It was the RAF's supreme effort to end the war by aerial bombing. But Berlin was not destroyed and the RAF lost more than 600 aircraft and their crews. The controversy over whether the Battle of Berlin was a success or failure has continued ever since. Martin Middlebrook brings to this subject considerable experience as a military historian. He has achieved the difficult task of bringing together both sides of the Battle of Berlin: the bombing force and the people on the ground to tell a coherent single story. The author describes the battle month by month as the bombers waited for the dark nights with no moon to resume their effort to destroy Berlin and end the war. He recounts the ebb and flow of fortunes, identifying the tactical factors that helped first the bombers then the night fighters to gain the upper hand. Through the words of the participants, he brings to the reader the hopes, fears, and bravery of the young bomber aircrews in the desperate air battles that were waged as the Luftwaffe attempted to protect their capital city. And he includes that element so often omitted from books about the bombing war the experiences of ordinary people in the target city showing how the bombing destroyed homes killed families affected morale and reduced the German war effort Martin Middlebrook's meticulous attention to detail makes The Bomber Battle of Berlin one of his most accomplished books to date

Battle of Berlin 1943-44 Richard Worrall, 2019-09-19 This illustrated study explores in detail the controversial Battle of Berlin RAF Bomber Command's costly brutal attempt to prove that strategic bombing alone could bring an end to World War II Throughout late 1943 into early 1944 an epic struggle raged over the skies of Germany between RAF Bomber Command and the Luftwaffe This campaign had been undertaken by the Commander in Chief Bomber Command Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris and was baptized The Battle of Berlin The Berlin campaign was a hard desperate slog Struggling against dreadful and bitter winter weather Bomber Command went to Berlin a total of sixteen times suffering increasingly severe losses throughout the winter of 1943-44 in the face of a revitalized German air defence. The campaign remains controversial and the jury even today is ultimately undecided as to what it realistically achieved. Illustrated throughout with full colour artwork depicting the enormous scale of the campaign, this is the story of the RAF's much debated attempt to win the war through bombing alone.

Battle of Berlin Martin W. Bowman, 2020-08-19

The Battle of Berlin, the bombing of the Big City as it was known to the crews of RAF Bomber Command, raged from 18 November 1943 to the end of the war in Europe in 1945. It is recalled here both by those in the air over capital of the Third Reich as well as those who suffered under the bombing onslaught. At the start of the Battle of Berlin, Sir Arthur Harris had predicted that the Big City would cost between 400-500 aircraft but that it would also cost Germany the war. He was proved wrong on both counts. Berlin was not wrecked from end to end as Harris predicted on 3 November 1943 if the USAAF will come in on it, although a considerable part of it was destroyed. And the Main Battle of Berlin did not cost Germany the war; a grinding land campaign had yet to be fought. More than 9,000 bombing sorties were flown during the battle on round trips of about 1,200 miles to Berlin and back. Berlin was bombed by four Allied air forces between 1940 and 1945. British bombers alone dropped 45,517 tons of bombs whilst the Americans a further 23,000 tons. By 1944, some 1.2 million people, 790,000 of them women and children, about a quarter of Berlin's population had been evacuated to rural areas. An effort was made to evacuate all children from Berlin but this was defeated by parents and many evacuees who soon made their way back to the city. However, by May 1945, 1.7 million people, 40% of the population, had fled the city. This fitting tribute to those who died in the relentless struggle to knock Berlin and hopefully Germany out of the war resonates with eye witness accounts and background information which the author has painstakingly investigated and researched. The result is a hugely fascinating and highly readable narrative containing very real and unique observations by British and Commonwealth aircrew and equally importantly the long suffering citizens of Berlin and well as the capital's defenders. Up to the end of March 1945, there had been a total of 314 air raids on Berlin, eighty-five of these in the last twelve months. Estimates of the total number of dead in Berlin from air raids range from 20,000 to 50,000; the relatively low casualty figure in Berlin is partly the result of the city's formidable air defences and shelters. The Battle of Berlin was not a defeat in absolute terms but in the operational sense it was an offensive that Air Marshal Sir Arthur Harris and his aircrews could not win. Berlin won, concluded Sir Ralph Cochrane, the Air Officer Commanding 5 Group RAF Bomber Command. It was just too tough a nut.

Battle of Berlin 1943-44 Richard Worrall, 2019-09-19

This illustrated study explores in detail the controversial Battle of Berlin, RAF Bomber Command's costly brutal attempt to prove that strategic bombing alone could bring an end to World War II. Throughout late 1943 into early 1944, an epic struggle raged over the skies of Germany between RAF Bomber Command and the Luftwaffe. This campaign had been undertaken by the Commander in Chief Bomber Command, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris, and was baptized The Battle of Berlin. The Berlin campaign was a hard desperate slog Struggling against dreadful and bitter winter weather Bomber Command went to Berlin a total of sixteen times suffering increasingly severe losses throughout the winter of 1943 44 in the face of a revitalized German air defence The campaign remains controversial and the jury even today is ultimately undecided as to what it realistically achieved Illustrated throughout with full colour artwork depicting the enormous scale of the campaign this is the story of the RAF s much debated attempt to win the war through bombing alone RAF Bomber Command at War, 1939-1945 Craig Armstrong, 2021-04-28 The Royal Air Force had placed a great deal of faith in its force of bombers Bomber Command in the event of a future war The belief in the ability of formations of bombers flying in daylight and unescorted protecting themselves from enemy fighter attack informed early tactics but led to bloody losses Hampered by government restrictions on targets by late 1941 Bomber Command was in crisis As a result and coupled the growing dire war situation a new and forceful commander Sir Arthur Harris was appointed and new strategies allowed Bomber Command to broaden its attacks despite some opposition The result was the area bombing strategy which focussed attacks upon enemy held towns and cities This Main Offensive period lasted throughout 1943 1944 and saw both victories and defeats It was also the period that saw a limited number of precision attacks on Augsburg Peenemunde and most famously the Ruhr dams Bomber Command also aided in tactical and strategic support for the invasion of Europe and the subsequent fight to push inland New technological developments allowed Bomber Command to hit V Weapons sites and to focus more on precision bombing but Harris remained determined to hit German towns and cities whenever possible while the Command s growing power allowed it to rain devastation upon its targets culminating at Dresden Much has been written about Bomber Command but this book focusses largely on those who took part in the raids and on public attitudes towards the campaign in Britain Using accounts from national and local archives newspapers and existing historiography the book seeks to shed light on untold stories from Bomber Command s war Bomber Command's War Against Germany An Official History, 2020-12-14 The internal RAF analysis of the different phases of the air war and what lessons could be learnt from those campaigns Royal Aeronautical Society website When the RAF s Bomber Command analyzed the results of their precision bombing efforts during the early years of World War II a growing body of evidence indicated that the great knockout blow expected to be delivered from the air was a fantasy It would only be through a prolonged campaign of attrition that the enemy could be worn down to such a degree that morale the means of production and the infrastructure of the enemy would be degraded to the point where its fighting ability was crippled The result of this assessment was a change of policy from precision bombing of carefully identified key installations to area bombing with the declared intent of striking at the homes of the German workers the factories where they worked regardless of the nature of such establishments or of the civilian casualties that would be the inevitable consequence In compiling this official analysis of the effectiveness of the RAF s strategic bombing campaign the author was granted unrestricted access to Air Ministry Cabinet and other relevant departmental documents that were maintained for internal government use enabling him to gain a complete and unbiased assessment of the contribution made by Bomber Command to the defeat of Germany The conclusion he draws fully justifies the decisions taken by both Britain and the USA to bomb the German people into surrender
