poem I am a messenger of wisdom love giving it away in hopes of myself helping someone make it through another day My style is spoken word mixed with common sense motivational encouraging uplifting everyday down to earth thinking mixed in with poetry I designed this book so even small children will be able to understand I m just human like everyone else so I included a lot of everyday pictures of myself I really hope you enjoy this great piece of work I have put together for you all to see and read I am a very Spiritual person so I mixed in that part of myself into my poetry also in Blue Away Carried

A Scattering of Blue Light Brian Wilkinson,2024-01-05 In 1865 Victorian shipping merchant Arthur Harrison set out for Zermatt with ambitions of conquering mountains Instead he stumbled upon an enigma that would consume him the mysterious Katrin and a peculiar triple headed eagle cypher delicately embroidered on a picnic tablecloth As Arthur delves deeper into the mystery he finds himself on an unexpected journey one that not only challenges his understanding but also holds unforeseen consequences for him and everyone connected to him

Motherland Sally Thomas,2020-05-29 In Sally Thomas s Motherland the poet keenly observes the ephemeral and the everlasting in the lens of time the daily into seasonal transformations the gifts and wonders of nature and people Motherland by turns hails and interrogates in matters of flesh of faith and spirituality especially so in the Richeldis of Walsingham poem sequence This finalist in the Able Muse Book Award is a collection abounding in insight hope grace surprises and yes love PRAISE FOR MOTHERLAND A core of spiritual knowledge resides in the poems of Sally Thomas s Motherland knowledge that might seem strange to the poet herself in fact though it definitely resides in her and radiates throughout this collection Motherland is the perfect title since the poet herself a mother regards all her human occupations as native and yet mysterious occurring in a place which is both foreign and familiar The final sequence on Richeldis of Walsingham includes lines that describe the expression of that knowledge as the eloquence Of the small river moving always forward to the unseen Sea Motherland is a book of the presence radiant benevolent challenging for which there is often no word except as we find in poetry like the poetry of Sally Thomas Mark Jarman author of The Heronry The poems of Sally Thomas are poems in which the act of looking at the world in all its depth and complexity is just about as close as possible to being fully realized in the corresponding world of poetic language and form And the verses are compelling because in every line something is at stake our very understanding of creation the human condition and the mystery of thought and its language that link us however imperfectly to what may be called the given world As Thomas says in Frost Tricky winter light and my own eye Bend the world if not to beauty then To strangeness David Middleton from the foreword author of The Fiddler of Driskill Hill In her most recent collection of poems Motherland Sally Thomas gives us a world we live in but alas too often don t seem to see So much is lost these poems tell us even as they manage to reinstate and re imagine these losses for us All poetry is elegiac even as it can in the hands of a serious poet celebrate the very world which for all of us keeps slipping away in the great wheel of time Then too there is her mastery of poetic form among these the sonnet the villanelle the couplet and her unparalleled command of rhyme and slant rhyme What a delight to discover a poet who has found a way to allow the sacred and the sacramental inform her poems in a surprising range of contemporary idioms Paul Mariani author of Epitaphs for the Journey ABOUT THE AUTHOR Sally Thomas was born in Memphis Tennessee in 1964 and was educated at Vanderbilt University the University of Memphis and the University of Utah She spent some years living in the American West and in Great Britain before settling in North Carolina her current home She is the author of two poetry chapbooks Fallen Water 2015 and Richeldis of Walsingham 2016 both from Finishing Line Press Over the last two decades her poetry and fiction have appeared in Dappled Things First Things Relief A Journal of Art and Faith Southern Poetry Review the New Yorker the Rialto and other journals in the United States and Great Britain
