Blue Water, Green Skipper Stuart Woods,1977-06     The American Neptune ,1980 A quarterly journal of maritime history     Blue Water, Green Skipper Stuart Woods,2012-08-02 Stuart Woods had never owned more than a dinghy before setting out on one of the world s most demanding sea voyages navigating single handedly across the Atlantic How at the age of thirty seven did this self proclaimed novice go from small ponds to the big sea Now with a new afterword that looks back at how one transatlantic race changed his life Woods takes readers on a spectacular journey not just of traveling across the world but of being tried in fire learning by accepting challenges appreciating the beauty of the open water and living to tell about it     Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1983     Blue Water, Green Skipper Stuart Woods,1977     Single Handed A. A. Purves,1984-01-01     The Observer Single-handed Transatlantic Race ,1968     OSTAR Lloyd Foster,1989     Very Willing Griffin David Blagden,1974     The Last Man Across the Atlantic Paul Heiney,2005 In 1960 when Sir Francis Chichester first raced singlehanded across the Atlantic it was widely regarded as a voyage only for the insane Nowadays the Singlehanded Transatlantic Race is not only accorded the greatest of respect but it is also recognised as a true test of stamina seamanship and navigation But this does not mean that it is exclusively a race for heroes In 2005 writer and broadcaster Paul Heiney an amateur sailor by any method of measurement entered the race to prove that the Corinthian spirit of the transatlantic pioneers can still get you from one side of the Atlantic to the other if you try hard enough He sailed in what would be widely regarded as a standard family cruiser in which he had great confidence but his trust in his own abilities was less certain The Last Man Across the Atlantic is an honest account of what it is like to be out there alone Even the strongest yacht takes a battering after 3 000 miles bits break and there s no pit stop for repairs Sails are torn water turns sour the last apple turns to mush and there s still three weeks to go before sight of land And then there s the crew the poor sod on his own making all the decisions taking all the blame enjoying the credit for when things go right inevitably responsible when they fail There is no one else to scold or praise no shoulder to weep on no one to joke with no one to kiss nobody to argue with about who washes up There are books aboard for comfort but probably not The Perfect Storm Paul Heiney fully expected to be the last man across the Atlantic in the 2005 race and says it didn t bother him in the slightest It s enough to be able to say you climbed Everest without having to run up it as well And this is the sailing Everest for me anyway

Alone Against the Atlantic Frank Page,1980-01-01     Sailing Solo Nic Compton,2003-06 One person one boat and mile upon mile of open sea Ever since Joshua Slocum circumnavigated the world in 1895 1898 sailors have dreamed of taking to the high seas alone and many have devoted their lives to doing just that Sir Francis Chichester sailed around the world in 266 days in 1966 and two years later Robin Knox Johnston became the first to do it non stop If one skipper could do it fast then others thought they could do it faster From the first Observer Single handed Transatlantic Race Ostar in 1960 the idea of lone sailors pitting their wits against each other and the elements aboard such delicate seeming craft has captured the
