High Resolution Archaeology and Neanderthal Behavior Eudald Carbonell i Roura, 2012-03-13 The aim of this book is to provide a new insight on Neanderthal behaviour using the data recovered in level J of Roman rockshelter north eastern Spain Due to the sedimentary dynamics that formed the Roman deposit the occupation layers are characterized by a high temporal resolution which makes it easier to interpret the archaeological data in behavioural terms. In addition, the different analytical domains: geoarchaeology, lithic technology, zooarchaeology, taphonomy, anthracology, palaeontology, are addressed from a spatial perspective that is basic to understand human behaviour but also to evaluate the behavioural inferences in the framework of the archaeological formation processes.

Excavations at Tlachtga, Hill of Ward, Co. Meath, Ireland Stephen Davis, Caitríona Moore, 2024-04-30 Initial remote sensing survey at Tlachtga Co Meath in 2011/12 highlighted the presence of multiple partially overlapping phases of enclosure at the site. Three subsequent seasons of excavation provided critical interpretive evidence with over 15 000 fragments of animal bone, human remains, charred plant material, evidence of metalworking and a hoard of Anglo-Saxon silver coins dating to the late 10th century AD. The main activity at the site spans four broad periods and two main phases of monumental construction: a late Bronze Age to early Iron Age Hillfort Phase (1100-400 BC) and a late Iron Age to early medieval AD (400-600) ringfort phase associated with a smaller foundation enclosure, the Southern Enclosure. This ringfort phase was remodeled later in the early medieval period (9th-10th century AD) and augmented by a phase of mound construction in the mid 10th century AD. This is contemporary with the deposition of the coin hoard east of the main complex in an apparent craft working area. The final phase of the central mound indicates the construction of a timber stockade, most likely in the 12th century, again with significant craft activity. This volume represents the excavation of at least four loci within the broader monumental landscape of Tlachtga, charting its progression from Bronze Age hillfort to pre-Anglo-Norman power display mound. The excavations at the Hill of Ward and this publication were made possible through funding by the National Monuments Service via the Royal Irish Academy archaeological research excavation grants and by Meath County Council with additional support by the Office of Public Works and the Heritage Council.

Archaeological Artefacts as Material Culture Linda Hurcombe, 2014-05-12 This book is an introduction to the study of artefacts, setting them in a social context rather than using a purely scientific approach. Drawing on a range of different cultures and extensively illustrated, Archaeological Artefacts and Material Culture covers everything from recovery strategies and recording procedures to interpretation through typology, ethnography and experiment, and every type of material including wood, fibers, bones, hides and adhesives, stone, clay and metals. With over seventy illustrations, with almost fifty in full colour, this book not only provides the tools an archaeologist will need to interpret past societies from their artefacts but also a keen appreciation of the beauty and tactility involved in working with these fascinating objects. This is a book no archaeologist should be without, but it will also appeal to anybody interested in the interaction between people and objects.

Ritual bones or common waste? J. Thilderkvist, 2013-11-01 This book addresses the problems of identifying human actions behind finds of bones in settlement
