Sorrow and Consolation in Italian Humanism George W. McClure, 2014-07-14 George McClure offers here a far reaching analysis of the role of consolation in Italian Renaissance culture showing how the humanists' interest in despair and their effort to open up this realm in both social and personal terms signaled a shift toward a heightened secularization in European thought Analyzing works by fourteenth and fifteenth century writers from Petrarch to Marsilio Ficino McClure examines the treatment of such problems as bereavement fear of death illness despair and misfortune These writers who evinced a belief in the legitimacy of secular sadness tried to forge a wisdom that in their view dealt more realistically with the art of living and dying than did the disputations of scholastic philosophy and theology Arguing that consolatory concerns helped spur the revival of classical schools of psychological thought McClure reveals that the humanists sought comfort from once neglected troves of Stoic Peripatetic Epicurean Platonic and Christian thought He contends that the humanists' pursuit of solace and their duty as consolers provided not only a forum but perhaps also an incentive for the articulation of prominent Renaissance themes concerning immortality the dignity of man and the sanctity of worldly endeavor Originally published in 1990 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy

Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

Joys and Sorrows of Imaginary Persons Donald Wesling, 2008-01-01 Joys and Sorrows of Imaginary Persons is a literary approach to consciousness where Donald Wesling denies that emotion is the scandal or handmaid of reason rather emotion is the co creator with reason of human life in the world Discoveries in neuro science in the 1990s Decade of the Brain have proven that thinking and feeling are wrapped with each other and regulate and fulfill each other Accepting this co creative equality we reveal a new role for literature or a traditional role we've repressed literature as a set of processes in time where we've thought feeling through stories about the lives of imaginary persons We need these stories in order to practice emotions for when we return to the world from reading Donald Wesling argues that to be more accurate in our dealings with stories we require a grammar of this new recognition where we build up traditional stylistics by a more careful tracking of emotion states as these are set into writing The first half of Joys and Sorrows of Imaginary Persons offers a creative stock taking of the current state of scholarship on emotion based on wide reading in several fields The second half gives three focused studies rich in examples of emotion as cognition as story and as historical structure of feeling
