Responding to a Resurgent Russia Vinod K. Aggarwal, Kristi Govella, 2011-11-25 In this volume a set of issue and country experts tackle the questions surrounding the challenges of a resurgent Russia for the world order as well as for relations between the European Union and the United States Following a brief introduction laying out the circumstances of Russia's rise the book proceeds in three sections In the first Russian scholars tackle the topic of how a newly resurgent Russia sees the world The second section examines Russia's role in the contemporary global political economy in terms of trade and financial flows and nuclear energy The third section looks at American and European responses to Russia and the conclusion draws together the findings from each of the chapters and presents some broad propositions regarding Russia's rise and the challenges that it presents for the US EU and the international order in the years to come The implications of this collection are very broad and far reaching with ramifications for each of the players involved as well as for the development and refinement of general international relations theories concerning global conflict and cooperation making the book relevant for both policy makers and scholars of international relations Russian studies and international political economy

Baltic Independence and Russian Foreign Energy Policy Harold Elletson, 2006 Increasingly dependent on Russian gas imports and with negligible sources of domestic energy supply the Baltic countries have been the target of aggressive Russian commercial activity and a sustained attempt to lock them into a long term reliance on Russia Now as Baltic political leaders energy specialists and intelligence analysts consider their options the implications for the security and independence of the three EU member states are a matter of concern well beyond the Baltic This series of reports establishes for the first time the confluence of Russian foreign policy with the acquisition of foreign energy assets by Russian entities Nine specific country profiles focus on the oil gas electricity and nuclear power industries Each report written by an author of international standing explains how Russian foreign energy downstream mergers and acquisitions are transpiring to consolidate the new Russian empire
