Art As A Release Of Power:

Elites, Nonelites, and Power Rebecca Jean Emigh, Dylan Riley, 2024-11-28 Bringing together cutting edge multidisciplinary papers that weigh in on central issues of the world and social science the collection consider power elites and nonelites in a new inclusive way drawing in researchers who deal with topics central to elite theory but who might not be represented in more classic statements of it

Maritime Power and the Law of the Sea: James Kraska, 2011-01-19 In Maritime Power and the Law of the Sea Expeditionary Operations in World Politics Commander James Kraska analyzes the evolving rules governing freedom of the seas and their impact on expeditionary operations in the littoral near shore coastal zone Coastal state practice and international law are developing in ways that restrict naval access to the littorals and associated coastal communities and inshore regions that have become the fulcrum of world geopolitics Consequently the ability of naval forces to project expeditionary power throughout semi enclosed seas exclusive economic zones EEZs and along the important sea shore interface is diminishing and as a result limiting strategic access and freedom of action where it is most needed Commander Kraska describes how control of the global commons coupled with new approaches to sea power and expeditionary force projection has given the United States and its allies the ability to assert overwhelming sea power to nearly any area of the globe But as the law of the sea gravitates away from a classic liberal order of the oceans naval forces are finding it more challenging to accomplish the spectrum of maritime missions in the coastal littorals including forward presence power projection deterrence humanitarian assistance and sea control The developing legal order of the oceans fuses diplomacy strategy and international law to directly challenge unimpeded access to coastal areas with profound implications for American grand strategy and world politics

Sea Power and the Control of Trade Nicholas Tracy, 2019-01-15 Charts the British government's changing perception of the utility of naval control of trade between 1854 and the late 1960s This collection of departmental files and treaties reviews the changing perceptions in the British government of the utility of naval control of trade over the period from the outbreak of the Russian or Crimean war in 1854 to the United Nations mandated Beira patrol established in 1966 to stop the flow of oil to Southern Rhodesia The capacity of navies to influence world events through control of seaborne trade was profoundly affected by nineteenth century developments in economic theory commercial organization and naval technology Although the number of relevant documents from the nineteenth century are relatively few the apparatus for study of naval strategy was significantly improved by the formation of the Committee of Imperial Defence CID in 1904 Thereafter until the Second World War the question of belligerent rights at sea was under almost continuous scrutiny The naval wars with France had been fought with the old mercantilist strategic tools The resultant collateral damage to Britain had been a declaration of war by the United States in 1812 while Napoleon's Continental System had even more disastrous consequences for the French Empire From that time questions about belligerent rights were the most divisive issue in Anglo American relations and the degree of attention the British government had to devote to the legal restraints on naval strategy kept pace with the growing naval and economic potential of the United States the only country in a position to pose a serious threat to British sea power The focus of this collection is on the work during the years of peace in preparation for war marked by a series of milestones the need to find a modus vivendi with France on the eve of the Russian War the first effort at recodification of prize law in the Declaration of Paris of 1856 the need to deal with the consequences of the American Civil War the Declaration of London of 1909 the apparent effect of the use of economic controls to deny enemy access to supply on the outcome of the First World War the formation of the League of Nations in 1919 and the Kellogg Briand Pact of 1927 The First World War vastly enhanced the prestige of naval blockade but circumstances during the Second World War correspondingly deflated the value accorded to it Post Second World War the British government had to respond to the exercise of belligerent rights by other states on a number of occasions but in the nuclear age there was no longer any expectation that naval control of commerce could provide decisive protection of British interests In any event with the formation of the United Nations the concept of neutrality all but disappeared and resolutions of the Security Council became all the law of belligerency which was required
