making technologies on the visual culture of nineteenth century France from the early commercialization of synthetic dyes to the Lumière brothers' perfection of the autochrome color photography process. Focusing on Impressionist art, Laura Anne Kalba examines the importance of dyes produced in the second half of the nineteenth century to the vision of artists such as Edgar Degas, Pierre-Auguste Renoir, and Claude Monet. The proliferation of vibrant new colors in France during this time challenged popular understandings of realism, abstraction, and fantasy in the realms of fine art and popular culture. More than simply adding a touch of spectacle to everyday life, Kalba shows these bright, varied colors came to define the development of a consumer culture increasingly based on the sensual appeal of color. Impressionism, emerging at a time when inexpensively produced color functioned as one of the principal means by and through which people understood modes of visual perception and signification, mirrored and mediated this change, shaping the ways in which people made sense of both modern life and modern art. Demonstrating the central importance of color history and technologies to the study of visuality, Color in the Age of Impressionism adds a dynamic new layer to our understanding of visual and material culture. Library Journal Book Review, 1979 Jaques Cattell Press, 1980-03 Savoring Gotham Andrew F. Smith, 2015 Savoring Gotham traces the rise of New York City's global culinary stardom in 570 accessible yet well-researched A-Z entries. From the Native Americans who arrived in the area 5,000 years before New York was New York and who planted the maize, squash, and beans that European and other settlers to the New World embraced centuries later to Greek diners in the city that are arguably not diners at all, this is the first A-Z reference work to take a broad and historically informed approach to NYC food and drink.
