Americas Private Forests Status And Stewardship The Pacific Forest Trust:

America's Private Forests Constance Best, Laurie A. Wayburn, 2013-02-22 Nearly 430 million acres of forests in the United States are privately owned but the viability and indeed the very existence of these forests is increasingly threatened by population growth sprawling urbanization and patchwork development Scientists policymakers and community leaders have begun to recognize the vital role of private forests in providing society with essential goods and services from sustainable timber supplies to clean water Yet despite the tremendous economic and ecological importance of private forests information about their status and strategies for their protection have been in short supply America's Private Forests addresses that shortcoming presenting extensive data gathered from diverse sources and offering a concise overview of the current status of privately owned forests in the United States As well as describing the state of private forests the book sets forth detailed information on a wide range of approaches to conservation along with an action agenda for implementing those strategies likely to be most effective The book identifies the major threats to private forests in the United States considers barriers to conservation outlines the available tools and programs for promoting conservation presents a road map to guide collective efforts for the conservation of private forests and their native biodiversity Based on extensive research of existing literature as well as interviews and consultation with leading forestry and conservation experts America's Private Forests is a unique sourcebook that offers a solid basis for discussion of threats to private forests along with an invaluable compendium of potential solutions It will serve as an invaluable reference for all those working to conserve and steward forest resources including forest owners and their consultants conservation organizations and agency personnel as well as researchers and students involved with issues of forestry biodiversity land use and conservation

Climate Change, Carbon, and Forestry in Northwestern North America David Lawrence Peterson, John L. Innes, Kelly O'Brian, 2004 Interactions between forests climatic change and the Earths carbon cycle are complex and represent a challenge for forest managers they are integral to the sustainable management of forests In this volume a number of papers are presented that describe some of the complex relationships between climate the global carbon cycle and forests Research has demonstrated that these are closely connected such that changes in one have an influence not only on the other two but also on their linkages Climatic change represents a considerable threat to forest management in the current static paradigm However carbon sequestration issues offer opportunities for new techniques and strategies and those able to adapt their management to this changing situation are likely to benefit Such changes are already underway in countries such as Australia and Costa Rica but it will probably take much longer for the forestry sector in the Pacific Northwest region of North America encompassing Oregon Washington Montana Idaho British Columbia and Alaska to change their current practices Exchange ,2004 Choice ,2001 The Publishers Weekly ,2001 Proceedings of the American Forest Congress ,1996 Library Journal ,2001 World Forests, Markets and Policies Matti Palo,J. Climate Change and United States Forests Peterson David L.,James M. Vose,Toral Patel-Weynand,2013-12-19 This volume offers a scientific assessment of the effects of climatic variability and change on forest resources in the United States Derived from a report that provides technical input to the 2013 U S Global Change Research Program National Climate Assessment the book serves as a framework for managing U S forest resources in the context of climate change The authors focus on topics having the greatest potential to alter the structure and function of forest ecosystems and therefore ecosystem services by the end of the 21st century Part I provides an environmental context for assessing the effects of climate change on forest resources summarizing changes in environmental stressors followed by state of science projections for future climatic conditions relevant to forest ecosystems Part II offers a wide ranging assessment of vulnerability of forest ecosystems and ecosystem services to climate change The authors anticipate that altered disturbance regimes and stressors will have the biggest effects on forest ecosystems causing long term changes in forest conditions Part III outlines responses to climate change summarizing current status and trends in forest carbon effects of carbon management and carbon mitigation strategies Adaptation strategies and a proposed framework for risk assessment including case studies provide a structured approach for projecting and responding to future changes in resource conditions and ecosystem services Part IV describes how sustainable forest management which guides activities on most public and private lands in the United States can provide an overarching structure for mitigating and adapting to climate change
