Coups & Army Rule in Africa Samuel Decalo, 1990 Samuel Decalo presents detailed evidence from Dahomey Togo Congo Brazzaville and Uganda that African military coups are engineered by coterie of cliques composed of ambitious officers seeking self advancement He successfully refutes prevailing theories that military rule has fostered socioeconomic or political development or stability

Armies and Democracy in the New Africa Kent Hughes Butts, 1996 In October 1994 the Strategic Studies Institute sponsored a roundtable on democratization in Sub Saharan Africa Particular attention was paid to the role the U S military and Department of Defense played in democracy support This study developed from a paper presented at the roundtable Dr Butts and Dr Metz reject the notion that the political culture of African states allows or even encourages military intervention in politics Drawing on case studies from Nigeria and South Africa they contend that if the fragile democracies in Sub Saharan Africa are to be sustained African militaries must be extricated from politics and take decisive steps toward the type of military professionalism seen in stable democracies around the world U S national interests in Sub Saharan Africa are so limited that the region will receive only a very small proportion of the human political military and economic resources devoted to American national security strategy This makes efficiency imperative Dr Butts and Dr Metz argue that if U S strategic resources are used wisely in Africa they can have the desired effect In particular the U S military can play an important part in helping African militaries professionalize They close with concrete proposals through which the U S Department of Defense and the Army could more effectively support African democratization

State Erosion Lawrence P. Markowitz, 2013-11-15 State failure is a central challenge to international peace and security in the post Cold War era Yet theorizing on the causes of state failure remains surprisingly limited In State Erosion Lawrence P Markowitz draws on his extensive fieldwork in two Central Asian republics Tajikistan where state institutions fragmented into a five year civil war from 1992 through 1997 and Uzbekistan which constructed one of the largest state security apparatuses in post Soviet Eurasia to advance a theory of state failure focused on unlootable resources rent seeking and unruly elites In Tajikistan Uzbekistan and other countries with low capital mobility where resources cannot be extracted concealed or transported to market without state intervention local elites may control resources but they depend on patrons to convert their resources into rents Markowitz argues that different rent seeking opportunities either promote the cooptation of local elites to the regime or incite competition over rents which in turn lead to either cohesion or fragmentation Markowitz distinguishes between weak states and failed states challenges the assumption that state failure in a country begins at the center and radiates outward and expands the resource curse argument to include cash crop economies where mechanisms of state failure differ from those involved in fossil fuels and minerals Broadening his argument to weak states in the Middle East Syria and Lebanon and Africa Zimbabwe and Somalia Markowitz shows how the distinct patterns of state failure in weak states with immobile capital can inform our understanding of regime change ethnic violence and security sector reform
